NORTH DAKOTA A DREADNOUGHT HAS A BLAZE

Rivet Starts Flames on Big War Vessel in Drydock at Charlestown Navy Yard. Damage Said to Be Slight.

Fire was discovered this afternoon on board the battleship North Dakota, moored in a dock at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

The big new battleship, one of the largest in the American navy and classed with the Dreadnoughts, was placed in commission about two months ago and was sent to Charlestown for final work.

The alarm was turned in from the navy yard, and the city fire stations in the Charlestown district responded. The fire-fighting apparatus of the ship and the yard itself was immediately put into commission.

The gravest danger was in the boilers.

A hot rivet thrown by a riveter fell into one of the empty powder magazines and started the blaze in a pile of cork and other material.

The fire started in the hold, about amidships. The smoke poured out upon the deck in heavy clouds and was suffocating. The sailors manned the line aboard ship and marines pulled the lines of those in the yard and played on the fire. Sailors from the near-by ships rushed to aid, and soon about ah undred men were fighting the fire. Water was poured in great quantities upon the fire magazine.

Half a dozen Boston fire engines arrived in the yard in response to the alarm, but the fire-fighters were not allowed to go aboard. The men themselves managed to put out the smoky fire. The damage was small.

The North Dakota is the biggest warship in actual service in the American navy. She is the only American fighting ship in commission that challenges the English Dreadnought class, and is said by most critics to be even more powerful and better balanced than the pride of the British navy. She was put into commission about three weeks ago.

The big warship is 518 feet 9 inches over all and 510 feet in length on the load water line. She has a trial displacement of over 20,000 tons.

When ready for battle no warship afloat will be able to withstand her fire for five minutes. Her battery is the most formidable in the world—her 12-inch breech-loading rifles and two 21-inch submerged torpedo tubes. Besides these she has a large number of minor guns. She carries a crew of 600.

ENGLAND SPLIT ON CATHOLIC PLAN TO ALTER THE OATH

LONDON, May 13.—While the body of the beloved King Edward the Peacemaker lies guarded by grenadiers in the throne room of Buckingham Palace, the land he ruled for nine years is to-day torn by one of the bitterest religious disputes since the days of the Reformation. The general debate over altering the coronation oath, striking out words which the Roman Catholics consider insulting, is growing more acrimonious steadily, but at the same time the sentiment in favor of a change in the wording is increasing.

PROTESTANTS FAVOR THE ELIMINATION.

It is now apparent that a large section of the Protestant public looks with disfavor on the words written more than 200 years ago in a time of intense animosity between those differing creeds. Some of the most prominent men of the country have taken a hand in the dispute and the papers are filled with letters advocating one side or the other.

In political circles it became known today in all probability a special act altering the oath will be presented to Parliament within a short time. This is all the more desirable because the King is known to wish closer relations between the mother country and Canada, and a little less than half the Dominion's population is Catholic.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia arrived here to-day from Africa, where they were when King Edward died. They hurried to Buckingham, where a touching reunion followed among the members of the royal family. Queen Alexandra appeared to be greatly affected.

New King Wins Popularity.

The new King is winning his way into the hearts of his subjects in a remarkable manner, considering how the nation regarded him ashaure but a week ago. He later set to strike a responsive chord in the sending of an expression of sympathy to the little colliery town of Whitehaven where 152 men lie dead, entombed in a mine owned by Lord Lonsdale. In spite of the great rush of business affairs, State

JEWS OF KIEF ARE EXPELLED

KIEF, May 13.—Under the direction of Premier Stolypin, soldiers will begin the expulsion of Jews from Kief to-morrow.

"No Jew not entitled to legal residence in the city may remain after June 14," was the substance of the order given out to-day.

In a few instances leniity has been shown, delays being granted, but on the whole the crusade is marked with severity.

More than 700 Jews to-day made preparations to abandon most of their belongings and leave their homes with all possible haste.

The order of expulsion was issued as a result of an agitation which began in the Duma and originally provided that the expulsion should take place on April 28. Subsequently the order was suspended by Premier Stolypin to permit a further examination of Semitic claims of residence. The order applied to other cities and towns where Jews are residing without the pale and local commissions were appointed to revise the list of those affected by the order with the expectation that a large proportion would be allowed to remain undisturbed.

The Kief commission has considered thus far about 1,000 cases, of which 850 have been found to be subject to expulsion. The Governor General has reviewed the decisions of the commission and confirmed the expulsion of 700 of those listed.

The Jews remaining in Kief will be allowed to occupy Summer villas outside the city only through special permits granted in individual cases.

At Tashkent, in Asiatic Russia, the police have given forty Jewish families declared to be residing illegally three days in which to leave town.

NATIONAL LEAGUE GROUNDS, Chicago, May 13.—It looked pretty soft to the Chicago Cubs to greet the Doves after the hard scraps with the Giants, but the new elevated Boston nine appeared better than expected when the teams lined up for the first conflict of the season.

It was quite a different lineup the local fans had been used to gazing upon from the Doves and what the new formation could do against Chance's high-class travelers was awaited with interest.

The games played this season proved the waves were game and dangerous for any team to trifle with, and Fred Lake as manager was put down as an executive head who could see any weakness in the home team.

After taking three out of four from the Giants the Cubs were exhorted to get after the Doves and not let any chance slip by to better their standing, as a crowd of frisky youngsters such as Lake led on the field left no doubt that there could be no drop in the pace. Three Finger Brown was groomed to do some pitching, while Frock had the call on the Doves' end.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, May 13.—Batting hard for three out of four from the Browns, the loyal fans swarmed to the big grounds to see the wind-up clash between the Sox and the Mound City team.

The visitors had pressed were good fighters when backed in a corner and needed the game badly to break even in the series. It was the Sox who took the first two games, and the Browns wanted to be the boys to pick up the other brace of contests.

After the batting slump of the day before the Donovan's pellet jugglers were due to show something in the willow wielding line, and they rarely failed to come up to expectations when the time was ripe.

The coming of the Detroit Tigers tomorrow caused the home players to show more pepper than usual, as they wanted to be right for the hard games ahead. Joe Wood with his superheated steam on tap was carded to drive the Browns to cover, as he did the Highlanders early in the week, while Howell, the spit ball artist, got the one to warm up for action for the Brownies.

SAVE LINEMAN HIGH ON WIRES

Firemen early to-day rescued Lineman Merrill Gilman while he was paralyzed by an electric shock and dangling from wires at the top of a fifty-foot pole, and then summoned by telephone the Rev. Father James D. Regan of St. Patrick's Church, Roxbury, to the victim's side. The accident happened in front of fire house No. 27 in Washington street, Dorchester, near the Grove Hall transfer station. A crowd watched the firemen in their work of rescue.

Gilman was at work on the wires when a flash of current gave him a benumbing shock and firemen saw him topple over upon a bed of wires. Lieutenant John Gavin and Ladderman Fottler, working at feverish speed, got ladders and hooks out and climbed like squirrels to rescue him.

He was taken into the fire house and resuscitated. When he was able to speak he asked for Father Regan, who was called by phone.

Gilman was taken to the City Hospital by the police ambulance. He is suffering from bruises and shock, but is not dangerously hurt.

JAILED ON THEFT CHARGE.

BATTLE WITH FILIBUSTERS

A hand-to-hand battle with swords and firearms on board a filibuster in the harbor of Macoris, San Domingo, was reported by Captain Ross of the British tramp steamer Barston, which arrived this afternoon. The battle was between the crew of a Yankee schooner with a lot of firearms aboard and the port authorities. Captain Todd of the port was seriously wounded while boarding the vessel. The schooner tried to escape, but was captured by a small steamship which was pressed into service. The crew, Captain Ross said, was to be hanged.

MAN'S BODY IN CHARLES RIVER

The body of a very well-dressed man was found in the Charles River, near the boat landing at the Harvard bridge, today, and taken to the City Hospital morgue by the police.

ELEANORA SEARS WINS

Miss Eleanora Sears won the singles in the lawn tennis tournament of the Country Club, Brookline, to-day by defeating Miss Evelyn Sears in two straight sets, 6—3 and 8—6.

Each wind swept across the court and bothered both players. In the second set Miss Eleanora Sears won her match by her greater variety of effective strokes.

Although the pair have met many times on the court, to-day's match was the first that Eleanora Sears has been able to defeat the national champion of 1908. In the match to-day Miss Eleanora was out for revenge for the defeat that she received at the hands of her rival in the semi-finals at the Country Club for the tournament last year.

In the first set, Evelyn Sears found that her opponent had good service and good net play. Miss Eleanora Sears won the first set handily, 6—3.

Evelyn rallied in the second set and fought hard and carefully to win the set. However, Miss Eleanora, by her better service and better command of the ball, won a close set, 8—6.

In the semi-final women's doubles Eleanora Sears and Marion Vosse defeated S. Davis and F. Griffith, in straight sets, 6—2 and 6—1, and Evelyn Sears and Mrs. Margaret Curtis defeated Mrs. Denny and Mrs. Harold Baker, 6—1 and 6—2.

Eleanora Sears and Miss Marion Vosse will play Miss Evelyn Sears and Miss Margaret Curtis for the finals of the women's double tournament to-morrow.

BITTER FIGHT COMING ON REVISION OF OATH

and personal, and the strain of arranging for his father's funeral, the King himself was prostrated by the news.

This in spite of the fact that he has a reputation for overlooking such little kindnesses, caring nothing, according to report, for remembering anniversaries or sending messages of congratulation or condolence.

He has assumed this burden in a kingly fashion. One of the matters that will be taken up by the King as soon as possible after the funeral of Edward is the issue of a new series of stamps. King George is one of the world's foremost philatelists, and few collections surpass his. It is his aim to make the new issue remarkable for its beauty of color as well as of design.

Public Learns the Man.

Gradually George is coming to appear more of a man and less of a royal lay figure to his people. His accession has brought out many incidents of his career in the busy hitherto unknown to the public, and the result is that England has begun to accept her new ruler as a courageous, sensible officer, whose fashioning is due largely to his long service—more than a third of a century—in active naval life.

A new note of sorrow over the death of Edward has arisen among the lower classes. Though the grief over the death of the King is sincere the poor feel keenly the loss of wages on the day of his funeral—a public holiday—especially as Whit Monday is also a holiday. This led to the proposal that full wages be paid by all large employers, and the indications to-day are that the proposal will find general favor. Many large firms have already signified their intention of adopting the policy.

High Prices to See Funerals.

The demand for windows and other points of vantage along the route of King Edward's funeral procession on May 20 is already immense. Many houses and shops have posted notices that all their windows have been sold.

Numerous Americans are among the applicants. Ten Americans have paid $1,000 for a small balcony, and this is not an excessive price. The owner of a house in Piccadilly has refused $3,000 for a single window, on the first story. A small window on a higher story sold for $1,000.

In many cases the prices are double those charged on the occasion of Queen Victoria's funeral. Thirty shillings are being paid for standing room for one person on Pall Mall.

King Edward's interests in America's cup contests was well known, but the fact that he had a hand in designing Sir Thomas Lipton's cup was not generally known. Sir Thomas in a published volume says the King made many suggestions in connection with the designs, which were calculated to improve his yacht's chances of success of sailing the cup.

King George Overworked.

From a life of comparative ease and retirement King George suddenly found himself one of the hardest worked officials in the kingdom. In addition to spending considerable time daily at Buckingham Palace, comforting his widowed mother, he has to attend to multifarious duties connected with receiving and entertaining the royal guests and arranging the difficult details of the lying-in-state and the funeral.

Every o'clock each morning finds his majesty already at his desk in Marlborough House to reply to the innumerable messages of condolence and to receive his ministers and the officials who have to do with the obsequies.

YALE HEAD SCORES PUBLIC MEDDLERS

CHICAGO, May 13.—While passing through Chicago on his way to the University of California at Berkeley, Cal., where he is to deliver an address, May 17, on the fifteenth anniversary of that university, Arthur T. Hadley, president of Yale University, paused long enough to give a brief outline of the speech he is to deliver. His subject is "An Educated Democracy," and is based on the publics meddling in the affairs of the day. While President Hadley did not take anybody to task for criticising the work of experts, it was evident that he referred to the critics of the army and navy. He said if the army and navy were left to work out their own problems they would do better than if everybody jumped in and gave advice.

CHARGE FORGERY OF TITLE DEED

FITCHBURG, May 13.—The police have secured a warrant for the arrest of George E. Sands of Worcester, on the charge of forging a deed and profiting $1,700 thereby. Sands came to Ashby on May 4. He stated he wanted to buy a house, and got in touch with John Dobia. Sands had gone so far as to have Dobia draw up a deed when a slight hitch occurred. It is charged Sands took the deed to the office of Jean Robichaud, an attorney. Dobia says he did not sign it, but by the time Sands left he saw it this omission had been rectified. Robichaud accordingly certified it. Dobia has learned the deed had been presented at the Worcester North Savings Bank and a mortgage of $8,700 secured on it.

MILK IS SOLD 72 HOURS OLD, SAY DEALERS

Boston contractors admitted at the legislative inquiry to-day that they had sold milk seventy-two hours old since the milk strike. They admitted that it was not so good as fresh milk, but said it was suitable food for invalids and children if taken care of properly.

Other developments at the hearing before the committee were a request for milk transportation rates and vouchers for checks paid for the same by the contractors, and a statement by John K. Whiting, milk contractor, that the contractors wanted to regulate the price of milk so as to control the supply.

Mr. Whiting, who is president of the Brigham Company and interested in Dr. Whiting & Son's Milk Company, was asked by Representative Gardner:

"How old is the milk you have delivered since the first of May to consumers? And is it proper food for invalids and children?"

Milk Sold 72 Hours Old.

"We have sold milk at least seventy-two hours old," replied Mr. Whiting. I think it is suitable food for invalids and children if it is taken care of properly. It is not as good as fresh milk obtained from local sources of supply. Owing to the distance from which this milk comes and the imperfect transportation facilities, it takes a longer time to get it to the consumer."

When William A. Graustein was asked the same question he replied:

"During the first few days of the strike milk was sold that was at least seventy-two hours old. This milk is not as good as fresh milk."

He said he thought it was all right as a food for invalids and children.

There was a laugh when Senator John K. Meaney of Blackstone insisted on Whiting using the services of the lawyers from whom his concern is now getting milk.

"We are willing to give them privately," said Attorney John F. Cusick, who represented the contractor.

"This is no sub-rosa investigation," Meaney retorted. "The consumers ought to know the names."

But Senator Meaney, after members of the committee had conferred, said he would not press the question then. At the beginning of the hearing he had said to Whiting when the latter was reading from a report:

"No False Statements."

"Please do not get any false statements into the record!"

Whiting said that fifteen years ago there had been a combination among contractors to regulate milk prices. It had been dissolved, he said, and five milk contractors in business now were members of the combine.

He said contractors had been known to cut prices to obtain trade, and that in some instances bonuses had been offered to customers to get their trade away from other contractors.

Whiting stated that the section had never received relief from railroads on transportation of milk.

Senator Tisdale—"Why has not the price of milk been raised to the consumer?"

Mr. Whiting: "It is a question of supply and demand. On May 1, when the producers made their demands, there was a great deal of milk on the market. If we raised the price it would be merely an artificial one."

Q.Is it not true, Mr. Whiting, that the contractors wanted to control the market? A.—The contractors wanted to regulate the price so as to control the supply.

Q.—Can the producers make money at 4 cents a quart for milk? A.—They can. The contract price would average 4½ per cent. profit on their investment.

Mr. Whiting was asked to furnish the committee a comparative statement of the amount paid for transportation, State and inter-State, gross and net, for January, February and March during 1907 and 1910, also a statement of carload rates during the strike time and vouchers or checks paid for such transportation during that period.

It was inferred by spectators at the hearing that this information was desired in order to show whether there was an rebating on milk transportation charges, also whether the committee had been correctly informed on the point.

Mr. Whiting agreed to furnish the information as soon as it was available. He would have part of it ready Monday.

RAILROAD BILL FIGHT TO-DAY

WASHINGTON, May 13.—With the test of strength between the Senate insurgents and the regular Republicans over the administration's legislative program set for 4 o'clock this afternoon, both insurgents and regulars claim victory. The main struggle centres on the long and short haul amendments.

"We will win when the Senate votes on the amendments," was the declaration of leaders on each side.

The followers of Senator Aldrich were particularly positive that they had marshalled enough votes to make certain the defeat of ultra-radical amendments.

At noon it was said that the fight might be postponed, the long and short haul amendments being allowed to go over, the Senate taking a recess. It was pointed out that by this manoeuvre the majority could if it wished, postpone the issue for days. The plan met with much opposition.

The majority claimed by the regulars was eight votes. They conceded that Sanford and Smith or eighteen other Senators would vote for the amendment, but they claimed that their defection would be more than offset by the votes of Democrats from the cotton States, where the sentiment is strongly against the clause advocated by the interior sections.

DR. CHAPMAN TO MARRY FOR THIRD TIME

Friends of the Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, who conducted a successful series of revival meetings in Greater Boston about a year ago, were surprised to learn today that he is about to marry for the third time. His engagement to Miss Mabel Cordelia Monlton of Providence has just been announced and the wedding will take place at the home of the bride in August.

Dr. Chapman and his co-worker, Charles M. Alexander, the gospel singer, arrived today in New York from an evangelical work through Great Britain to open a meeting in Carnegie Hall. The wedding will follow as soon as Dr. Chapman completes an extended list of Summer engagements. He and his bride will make their home on Long Island.

Dr. Chapman has been married twice. In 1882 he wedded Miss Irene E. Sleddom. She died a few years later and in 1888 he married Miss Agnes Fryer Strain, at Albany, N. Y. She died in the Middle West about two years ago of blood poisoning.

Miss Moulton's home has always been in Providence. She is a member of the First Baptist Church. She was a special student at Brown University in 1904-1905 and is a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta Fraternity. She has always had deep interest in Christian and philanthropic endeavor and during the last two years has taken an active interest in the world simultaneous religious revival movement, originated by Dr. Chapman. Miss Moulton has two brothers, David P. Moulton and Benjamin P. Moulton, the latter president of the Common Council of Providence.

Lack of knowledge of the working of gas caused the death of an unidentified man about forty years old at No. 25 Bowdoin street. In the room is a double gas jet, from which a tube extends to a table lamp in the center of the room.

It is evident that the man, not acquainted with the arrangement, at first turned on the gas jet attached to the tube and tried to get a light, but as he did not, left it open and then lighted the other one. He fell asleep and was suffocated.

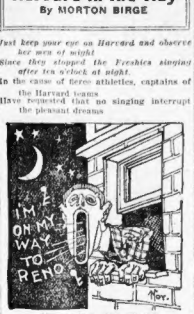
Harvard in the Hay

By MORTON BIRGE

Just keep your eye on Harvard and observe her men of might
Since they stopped the Freshies singing after ten o'clock at night.

In the cause of three athletics, captains of the Harvard teams
Have requested that no singing interrupt the pleasant dreams



NO MORE OF THIS

Of the men who go in training for the round or crew or track,
Such the sensitive condition of the mighty Harvard crack.

Ever hear a Harvard Freshie when his spirit moves to sing
Something like loud-on collidons when they set the signals wrong.

Mighty Harvard men of muscle fear no ordinary thing,
But it gets their goats to listen when a Freshie tries to sing.

Now the hefty hammer-thrower and the slugger on the nine
And the champion at checkers sleep the sleep of baby mine.

Never more the troubled tossing, but a slumber calm and deep,
Mommies will have nothing on them when it comes to eating sleep.

Just watch the Harvard Crimson sailing every foe in sight
Since they caused the freshman yodle after ten o'clock at night.

BLAMES SUGAR TRUST FOR RAISE IN PRICE

Since March 1, 1909, the price of sugar to the consumer has increased from 2½ to 6 cents a pound. In an endeavor to discover the reason for this raise, George A. Phipps of Dorchester wrote to Washington asking an explanation from Congressman John A. Martin of Colorado. Congressman Martin in his reply says:

"The only reason I can assign for the increase in the price of sugar is that the Sugar Trust is recouping for the loss it sustained in returning to the Government a fifth of its custom house stealings."

Sugar refiners and wholesale grocers in Boston say, however, the increase is caused by the decrease in the supply of raw sugar and the increase in demand.

FEDERAL LAW TO GIVE BEER TO HYDE PARK

The Interstate Commerce law, represented in this instance by a half-keg of beer, is being utilized in Hyde Park to defeat the no-license intentions of the voters and the selectmen.

Under the new scheme of ordering wet goods from out of the State it costs only fifteen cents more. That is but a small fraction of a cent on every glass of beer, when the goods come by the keg, half-keg or case.

The Hyde Park selectmen, in deference to wishes of many citizens, have refused since May 1 to renew any pony express or drug store licenses. There were four of the former and seven of the latter. The town has been as dry as a lime-kiln for the last fortnight.

Last night a half-keg of beer was shipped into Hyde Park from Portsmouth and was accepted by the Adams Express Company for local delivery. The police investigated and were told, it is said, that the Interstate Commerce law allows the Adams or American expresses to deliver into a no-license community liquors shipped from out of the State. The police accepted this explanation.

It costs a quarter to express a keg of beer out to Hyde Park from Boston. The freight on it from Portsmouth is only forty cents delivered. This can be worked apparently from Portsmouth, N. H., Providence, R. I., or any other license place in another State.

SAYS HUSBAND THREW EGGS AT THE WALL

Mrs. Helen C. Frederickson, young and stylishly gowned, told Judge Pierce in the Suffolk Divorce Court, where she appeared as a plaintiff today, that her husband, Peter A. F., had the habit of throwing eggs against the wall when he came home intoxicated. He would stand in the middle of the room and throw eggs against the wall, she said. "There were so many times there because he had this habit that I had to cover them with pictures. One night I made a nice chowder for supper. But he didn't like it. He took the pot off the stove and threw it into the sink, breaking a lot of fine dishes."

HIBBARD WILL SLEEP IN THE OPEN AIR TO FIGHT LUNG TROUBLE

Fighting gamely against tuberculosis, former Mayor Hibbard will begin sleeping outdoors as soon as possible, maybe tonight.

Devoting herself solely to the task of nursing her husband back to health, Mrs. Hibbard has assumed personal charge of the sick room.

To her husband she presents ever a sunny and cheerful attitude. Otherwise she faces the situation with the thoughtful care which any wife will readily understand.

To-day the invalid was moved down from his regular chamber on the second floor to a large, sunny room on the ground floor, which has three windows and favorable exposure.

In Bed and Helpless.

Weakened from worry and finally overburdened by being rejected by the Civil Service Commission for the position of City Collector, Mr. Hibbard was in no condition to throw off the disease which had been dormant in his system. The report from the family physician that traces of tuberculosis had been found was another blow. Mr. Hibbard is now in bed, helpless for the present.

But Mrs. Hibbard is resolute that her husband shall be benefited to the fullest extent possible. The outdoor treatment which is now recommended for Mr. Hibbard is to be instituted as soon as the rather high temperature of the invalid permits.

"Mr. Hibbard is about the same," said Mrs. Hibbard to-day. "He is propped up in bed. I have just taken to him the 'straining' mixture as it is called. It is a preparation for him to inhale.

"Yesterday I had a long talk with the doctor. I asked him if Mr. Hibbard would have to go away for treatment. The doctor said that Mr. Hibbard could just as well remain at home as the city's as good here as he could find anywhere and he will have the additional advantage of being at home.

Strain Tells on Patient.

"The doctor advised that he stay outdoors as much as possible and sleep outside as soon as the physician thinks it. I shall move him to-day out in the street in the open air on the piazza as soon as possible.

"It, myself, think that, if Mr. Hibbard had to go away, it would be too forlorn for him, as he would have to leave the children behind.

"The strain of the last month has told on Mr. Hibbard terribly. Without doubt this strain has had a great deal to do with his present condition. It was a great shock to us all when the doctor brought the news that Mr. Hibbard was suffering from tuberculosis. But I wish you would say that to-day the hearts of us all to feel sympathy for my husband is so widespread. There have been a great many who have telephoned me and many who have called personally.

"Certainly we are hoping for the best and Mr. Hibbard will make a great battle for his health. The doctor hopes he will be strong enough to walk about soon, so as not to be kept to his bed."

The chances for recovery of the ex-Mayor are found to be favorable. His physician says it is a case of relieving his mind from worry. With complete peace of mind he has a chance to overcome the first disease with which he must wage battle.

Daughter Aids Fight.

Mr. Hibbard's daughter, who recently married Henry Fogarty, the ex-Mayor's former clerk, has returned home to aid in the fight. She was formerly a trained nurse.

In the midst of to-day's preparations for his battle, ex-Mayor Hibbard received a letter of sympathy from Mayor Fitzgerald. The Mayor defends Mr. Hibbard's public career and attacks his "supercilious and snail-souled critics." The letter follows:

Hon. John F. Hibbard:

I have just received word of your illness, and I write you at once after the failure to confirm your appointment to say with what sincere regret this news has deeply affected me. I desire to extend my heartfelt sympathy, not only to yourself, but to the members of your family, who have visited all your life joys as well as these recent sorrows.

The newspaper articles do not state how serious the inroads of the disease from which you suffer are, and I sincerely trust that it has not advanced beyond the earlier stages, in which modern medical science, in a large proportion of the cases, holds out the prospect of a complete cure.

Attacks Hibbard Critics.

In any event, I know you will support your affliction in the same manly spirit which has characterized you throughout your public career. Your devoted wife and children may well be proud to bear your name, no matter what the adverse verdict of supercilious and snail-souled critics, unfortunately placed in positions of temporary authority, may have been.

I trust that my public acts have demonstrated my appreciation of your ability, and my desire to be of service to you, and that they will be the best warrant of my sincerity in offering you now any assistance that may lie in my power.

With best wishes for an early recovery, believe me,

Very sincerely yours,

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

Mayor Fitzgerald's letter was but one of hundreds of messages of sympathy which reached the Hibbard home to-day. Even the mayor's political enemies expressed their admiration for the bravery with which he is facing the greatest crisis of his life.

Mrs. Hibbard took it upon herself to answer many of the messages. She concealed as best she could her grief, but there were times when the tears started. She said she was deeply grateful to Mr. Hibbard's friends for their expressions of sympathy.

Indignation over the refusal of the civil service commission to confirm Mr. Hibbard's nomination to the office of city collector was expressed on all sides to-day. The surprise against the commission was even when it became known that its members had turned down a former postmaster and Mayor for a minor city office and into a great protest when the news of Ex-Mayor's illness became widely known.

The pathetic spectacle of an ex-Mayor, who, while in office was praised by the Finance Commission for his "untiring devotion of methods of honesty and business thrift," being refused the city collectorship stirred the sympathetic ever of the men who bitterly opposed him in his public offices. When the second crushing blow, the fact that Mr. Hibbard was a sufferer from the white plague—fell, not even his bitterest political foes continued their attitude of indifference toward the fate of the stricken head.

The result of the wave of sympathy may be a fight in the next Legislature to take from the Civil Service Board the power of confirming the Mayor's appointments.

Not only on the street, but in the Legislature, expressions of sympathy were heard. Senator Doyle for his party, said he felt the time had now come when a stand must be taken for justice to a man like George Hibbard or he was ready to lead the fight.

"George Hibbard need not be a poor man to-day," he said, "if he had so willed. There is not one of us but must appreciate what temptations he has resisted and what opportunities he has put to one side. George Hibbard is a victim to his desire to do right by the city of Boston, and every man with red blood in his veins must rise in protest."

In the House the same sentiments were expressed by Republicans and Democrats. Even members who helped to frame the charter bill in question expressed their willingness to come forward and demand that this power be either taken away from the commission or that it be compelled to give reasons.

Refuses to Be Named Again.

Before the worst was known it was planned it might, perhaps, be wise to send Mr. Hibbard's name again, and he was asked about it. He said, "No." His physician also said he needed months of rest before he could lift a hand, and so the plan was abandoned.

Following Mr. Hibbard's refusal to let his name be sent for the second time to the Civil Service Commission, Mayor Fitzgerald to-day named Colonel Rowland S. Parker, a prominent veteran of the Civil War, former member of the Common Council, member of the bar and a campaigner for Mayor Fitzgerald last Winter, for the position of city collector. Colonel Parker is a Republican in politics, but espoused the cause of Mayor Fitzgerald very early in the campaign. He presided at the big Tremont Temple rally.

The appointment is made, it is understood, for the purpose of rewarding Colonel Parker for his political services. Friends of the administration say it is not serious. It is believed in City Hall that Colonel Parker would be confirmed. The colonel is seventy years of age.

Plans New Place for Hibbard.

Mayor Fitzgerald stated that if James H. Noyes, member of the Transit Commission would resign he would appoint ex-Mayor Hibbard in his place.

Asked if he would resign Commissioner Noyes replied that he had absolutely nothing to say. It was learned, however, that the proposition to get Noyes to resign in order that Mr. Hibbard might be appointed to his place had been put up to Mr. Noyes some weeks ago and that he turned it down.

Mr. Noyes received his appointment from Mayor Hibbard and he has been one of his closest political and personal friends.

It is not beyond a probability that ex-Mayor Josiah Quincy, whom Mayor Fitzgerald appointed to the transit commission, may be asked to resign and give way to the ex-Mayor.

AUBURNDALE HORSE AND BUGGY STOLEN

While two of the help slept in a room overhead, two horse thieves entered the stable of F. J. Melody in Auburndale early to-day, harnessed a horse to a Stanhope buggy and drove away. The theft was not noticed until the man awoke this morning. To prevent the horse shivering, a blanket was placed on the floor to lessen the sound of the horse's feet. The horse was a black one, with a white face. The police of the surrounding towns have been notified.

CHEER UP! MR. HALLEY'S COMET WON'T HURT YOU

Millions of civilized, but misinformed people who expect to see something wonderful happen next week, when the earth passes through the tail of Halley's comet, are doomed to disappointment. It will be like dropping a tiny bead through an immense and almost transparent cloud.

Lakes and river will not boil, or the fish cook; asphalt pavements will not liquify and run into the sewers; the hair won't sizzle and burn off your head or the house catch fire, and neither will the moon, sun or stars be obscured.

These are all possibilities which have presented themselves to the laymen.

The earth passed through the tail of Halley's comet during the seventeenth century when it was 7,000,000 miles closer to the fiery nucleus than it will be next week.

Cablegrams to-day from Paris say the reports from various parts of France show that the common people believe pretty generally that the approach of the comet is the cause of remarkable atmosphere disturbances. All the newspapers are speculating upon the question whether or not the comet's poisonous tail will destroy animal life on the earth.

Among the educated classes, even in Paris, it is said that many more people fear that the comet may die to the earth's inhabitants than they care to acknowledge it.

Some American women, too, who intended to leave Paris before this to establish themselves elsewhere for the Summer, have refused to make any move until May 18, when the comet and the earth will be in their greatest proximity.

Learned scientists at the University of Kansas hope to be able to announce to an expectant world just what the tail of Halley's comet is made of. While the earth is passing through the tail, tests will be made on dust collected from the air. The dust will be minutely analyzed and the results made public that world inhabitants may know just what they escaped.

Liquid air also will be prepared from the atmosphere and will be examined.

Unlucky Man? Father of 46 Weds 4th Wife

CHARLOTTE COURTHOUSE, Va., May 13.—Abraham Brown, a merry, seventy-six years old, who is the father of forty-six children and who has lost count of his grandchildren, applied to the county clerk here to-day for a license to marry Miss Lucy Ann, who is thirty-five years old. The cost of the license was defrayed by citizens present.

STORK VISITS POLICE CELL.

The stork paid a visit to-day to the City Point Police Station. A pretty young woman was arrested last evening and after being booked on the charge of committing a petty misdemeanor was locked in a cell. At 10 o'clock the matron came hurriedly into the office and whispered somethingto Corporal Ned Hall. "What?" he gasped. Then he reached for the phone and called up Dr. Gallivan.

LOSES HER MEMORY ON 13TH.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Her name and home have been forgotten by a young woman who is in the Lincoln Hospital, Bronxville. She is well dressed and looks about twenty years old. She talks rationally about things going on around her, but her memory is a blank. She was on a trolley car from Mt. Vernon to White Plains when it was noticed that she seemed ill.

HARD LUCK FOR WILDCAT.

CALIFON, N. J., May 13.—The first wildcat to be killed in this neighborhood in years was shot to-day by Herman J. Thaw. The prowler had ravaged many hen-coops in the last month. They caught the cat carrying away one of his hens.

CRUEL DAY FOR MONKEYS.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Two hundred of the 500 chattering monkeys taken from the liner Graf Waldersee on her arrival from Hamburg are consigned to the Rockefeller Institute, where they are to be used for experiments in the interests of science—meaning, of course, vivisection.

ANTS ROUT WHOLE FAMILY.

BEDFORD, Ind., May 13.—Tiny white ants invaded the home of Edward P. Moore, a banker, at Mitchell. The insects, thousands of them, are of the flying variety and have taken complete possession of the Moore house, routing the members of the family.

WOMAN 63 MUSTN'T FLIRT.

CHICAGO, May 13.—An injunction to restrain Mrs. Catherine Ashlock Harley, sixty-three, from "flirting and spending her money on dainty dresses" is sought by her daughters, Mrs. Tatty Clara Wood and Mrs. Patricia B. Seibel. She is the widow of Captain James A. Ashlock, who left her $64,000. She is now the wife of Alfred Harley, twenty years her junior.

STORK TRAIN IN NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS, May 13.—With fifty-nine waifs aboard the "stork train" from the New York Foundling Asylum reached here to-day. Five hundred women were at the Union station to gobble up the babies. The Sisters of Charity arrived only twenty-five babies to would-be foster mothers in New Orleans.

INJUNCTION IN STRIKE FIGHT

Judge Rugg to-day issued an injunction against the trustees of the Fargo Real Estate Trust, Clinton J. Warren, architect; Bricklayers' Benevolent and Protective Union No. 3, Housesmiths' and Bridgemen's Union No. 7, and officers and members of the Building Trades Council, restraining the owners from breaking the contract and the other defendants from interfering with the contract held by the A. P. Soule & Son Company on the nine-story wool warehouse on Summer street extension. There has been a strike on the work.

The Judge finds that severe pressure was brought to bear on the plaintiff to discharge its non-union men. He holds that the calling of the strike by the unions was unjustifiable and constituted an unlawful combination to injure the plaintiff.

ASTOR TAKES UP AERO FAD

NEW YORK, May 13.—When John Jacob Astor landed in New York to-day from the liner Mauretania it became known that in his recent European trip he became an aero enthusiast and an aviation expert. Asked if he contemplated purchasing an aeroplane, he evasively admitted that he was intensely interested in the new sport, and saw the aviation meet at Nice, he said, "and noted great improvement in the machines in the last year. The monoplane seems to be freaky and unstable, but the biplane has a bright future.

"The biplane is not going to be far superior, especially in having the propellers in the rear, while the monoplane has them in front. With the wheels behind the observer the view is unobstructed, while with them in front he is subjected constantly to a small cyclone."

Two Vital Things Required in Treating Skin Diseases.

In treating and curing Eczema and other well defined skin diseases, two vital things must be done. One is to exclude dust, germs and air from the diseased parts, and the other is to set up the healing process at the same time. The new medical preparation called Cadum accomplishes both these results so effectively that the itching is stopped as soon as it is applied, and the sore parts heal up in a remarkably short time. Any one with skin trouble can test Cadum by getting a 50-cent box at any drug store, and thus personally realize the power of this new compound, which is just as effective in the cure of pimples, blotches, blackheads, eruptions, acne, herpes, scaly skin, rash, sores, chaffings, etc.

FRESNO DAN IN STORE CLOTHES AT A CONCERT

"Fresno Dan" has made his debut in Melrose society. The California fruit packer, known for almost twenty-five years in California as Henry Johnson, and late recognized by William C. Russell as his long-lost brother and the rightful heir to half the $500,000 estate of the late Senator Dan Russell of Melrose, shed the old suit which he has worn since his arrival, put on some fine new clothes, and last night appeared at the musicale of the Amphion Club, one of the most exclusive organizations in Melrose, in the City Auditorium.

The debutant came in company with Miss Marie Ainy, daughter of Ferdinand R. Ainy, one of the respondents in the suit of "Dakota Dan" Russell for a share of the estate. Mr. Ainy was also with them.

The three took up seats in the second row of the balcony. Necks began to be craned when the word was passed that the winner in the famous Russell litigation was present. At first the visitor was visibly embarrassed. Then, when the music began, quiet was restored and he seemed to enjoy himself.

THIN BLOOD IN RHEUMATISM

Indicates That It Is a Form of the Disease Most Readily Curable by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Every one who suffers from rheumatism will recognize the description of a genuine case at sight.

In the following brief statement are vividly described the symptoms which every patient will recognize and the means by which a cure was effected in this case is described with equal lucidity.

If you are suffering from any form of rheumatism with loss of flesh and strength, and thinning of the blood, the remedy that was so effective here deserves a thorough trial.

Mr. Isaac Walker, of No. 88 East River street, Hyde Park, Mass., suffered from childhood from rheumatism until it became so severe that he was obliged to give up work for a time. He then gave Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial and was cured. He says:

"I had always suffered from rheumatism in my back and limbs and would be miserable whenever the weather was damp and wet. As I grew older the disease became more firmly seated. I think it was hereditary as my father was a great sufferer from it.

"I had severe, dull pains in my back and shooting pains in my arms and legs. My flesh was very sore especially in the region of the spine. At times I could hardly walk across the room, for the pains were agonizing, and I would be nearly doubled up. During the hardest attacks I had to quit work and go to bed and could not get up or down without help.

"I doctored with specialists in Boston but they helped me for a time only. After spending many dollars with the doctors, I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had not taken the pills long before I was relieved of the severe pains. I was able to get around and continued to use the pills until entirely well. I now work every day and occasionally take the pills when I get run down for I find they build me up."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have also cured anemia, chlorosis, general debility, after-effects of the grip and fevers and should be given a trial wherever a tonic for the blood and nerves is needed. Our booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent free upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

ENGLISH NURSE WHO WAS HONORED BY KING EDWARD

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE

NOTED ARMY NURSE IS 90 YEARS TO-DAY

LONDON, May 13.—Florence Nightingale, the famous English war nurse and the only woman who ever received the Order of Merit, is ninety years old to-day. She is an invalid and has been confined to her home for years.

Florence Nightingale was the first woman to follow a modern army into action as a nurse, and in the Crimean War gained the title of "Angel of the Crimea." She was born in 1820, and in 1849 entered the famous institution at Kaiserwerth, Germany, to fit herself for a hospital nurse. She had just returned to England when the Crimean War broke out.

She at once organized a corps of volunteer nurses, whom she led to the East. At Scutari she founded a hospital and until the end of the war she was constantly at work administering to the troops either in the hospital or in the field.

Three years ago King Edward bestowed upon her the Order of Merit, the most exclusive distinction in the gift of the British sovereign. The membership of the order is limited to twenty-four, and in it at that time were such men as Lord Roberts, Lord Kitchener, Lord Avebury, James Bryce, John Morley, George Meredith, Admiral Fisher, Sir Alma Tadema and Sir William Huggins, who died on Miss Nightingale's birthday.

SECRET WIFE IN DIVORCE CASE

Talk is a story of two Mrs. Reeds, where there should only have been but one. The discovery of the second Mrs. Reed was made by accident in the divorce court before Judge Pierce to-day. The first Mrs. Reed appeared seeking separation from Chester A. Reed.

The discovery of the second Mrs. Reed came as the hearing neared its end. The first Mrs. Reed, who styles herself Mrs. Louise M., charged her husband with cruelty and declared that he had been living with another woman since deserting her. The other woman was supposed to be Miss Rita Cummings of Cambridge. As the witness named the second woman said she was Mrs. Reed, nee Cummings. She admitted being wed with Chester A. Reed and produced a marriage license to prove that she was married to him three years after he left the first Mrs. Reed. She told Judge Pierce that she supposed Reed was free from control and that she had no knowledge of another Mrs. Reed.

Neither the first Mrs. Reed nor her lawyer knew of the second marriage by Clayton Reed, if he is living. Efforts to serve him with papers were unavailing. He has not been seen on his beat, No. 97 Pine street, Cambridge, for several days. He lived there with the second Mrs. Reed up to within a week.

Clayton A. Reed and Miss Rita M. Reed were married in 1898. They lived in Boston, then moved to Lowell and later returned to Boston. The first Mrs. Reed charges that her husband deserted her in 1903. Judge Pierce took the case under advisement.

EMERSON GIRLS TO PLAY FOR MASONS

Plans are complete for the at-home production of "As You Like It," to be given on the estate of Colonel Everett B. Benton in Belmont, to-morrow evening for the benefit of the Masonic Home at Charlton. The play will be acted by the post-graduate class of Emerson College of Oratory, the cast being all feminine. Eight o'clock has been set for the play, but the grounds will be open from 6 to 11 o'clock, and there will be several special features from that time. Ladies' Orchestra, dancing on the platform and a Japanese teahouse in charge of real live girls will be given Monday, while Wednesday gives the end of Oakley Court, well from the Benton place.

CLUB WOMEN SNUB GIRLS ON A STRIKE

CINCINNATI, May 13.—The Federation of Women's Clubs to-day snubbed a committee of the girl cigar makers who have been on a "hunger strike" here for several months. Headed by Miss Florence Calvert, they were refused an interview by Mrs. Philip N. Moore, general president of the federation who said that the federation could take no stand in the matter. The afternoon program of the federation included a feeble conference at which the speakers included Mrs. Pauline Ries Childds of the Ohio delegation; Dr. Frances L. Bishop, Missouri; Mrs. S. C. Crockett, Tennessee, and Dr. Ellen L. Stevens, Florida.

GAS MAKERS GRANTED A WAGE INCREASE

Stationary engineers and firemen, with the gas makers employed at the North Station Pintsch Gas works, were notified to-day of a substantial increase in wages through an order issued by Henry Barnet, general superintendent of the mechanical department. The increase takes effect immediately. The gas makers get raised from $2.40 to $2.50 a day, while the stationary engineers are given 3½ cents an hour more, and the stationary firemen fifteen cents a day.

HELD IN $1,000 ON PICKPOCKET CHARGE

Accusing John W. Long and William Burns as being pickpockets, and declaring that they tried to rob three persons on Huntington avenue, near the Mechanics' Building, where Mystic Shriners were holding festivities last evening, Inspectors Gleaves and Minton took them into custody. When they were arraigned before Judge Burke to-day the hearing was postponed until Monday at the request of the police, and the prisoners were held in $1,000 each.

CITY SCHOOLBOYS IN MEET JUNE 18

The second annual outdoor meet for the students of the elementary schools of Boston will be held on the morning of June 18, at Wood Island Park.

The events for juniors are the fifty-yard dash, 110-yard dash, relay races, running high and broad jump, and putting five-pound shot, while those for seniors are the 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, relay races, running high and broad jump and putting eight-pound shot.

SENATOR BILL DEAD FOR YEAR

The Senate to-day, by a rollcall vote of 8 to 24, refused reconsideration of the Hiley resolution for election of United States Senators by direct vote. This kills it, so far as the present Legislature is concerned.

The resolution was defeated in the Senate yesterday by a vote of 11 to 22 without debate. When the matter was reached to-day several Senators who were in favor of the resolution were absent. An attempt was made to postpone action on reconsideration till Tuesday. This was lost by a vote of 9 to 23.

RUSH WORK ON CAPE CANAL

NEW YORK, May 13.—"Work on the Cape Cod Canal is going to be rushed."

This was the word given out to-day by August Belmont when he landed in New York from the Lusitania after a two months' honeymoon trip in Europe.

"I expect to visit the scene of operations within a short time," he said, "and hope to find all the dredges at work. I have paid little attention to business in the last few weeks, and this is now my chief interest."

ROOSEVELT HONOR GUEST AT LUNCHEON

BERLIN, May 13.—Colonel Roosevelt, in company with Burgomaster Kirchner, motored to-day to Rixh, a suburb, where a colony of fifteen hundred workmen, men and women, are maintained in relative comfort at the expense of the city of Berlin. The subject of public dependents is being pressed by the former President, who, while in Denmark, visited a similar institution.

The model charges at Rixh are made up of the aged, the infirm and those temporarily homeless and for work. They are not allowed imported cereals, but in cases of sickness receive medical treatment.

Returned to this city, Mr. Roosevelt was the guest at a large luncheon party of American citizens, including 15 of the women.

Earlier in the day he was closeted for an hour with Dr. Friedrich Schwally, who he is treating his throat. The laryngologist's conclusion, made as the basis of an address recently at Giessen university. The task of speaking strenuously for an hour and a half proved too much for the physicians here and kept from the many speeches Mr. Roosevelt has made all over Europe. It was declared that no serious ill-effects were expected.

WHITE EMPLOYES IN ENTERTAINMENT

This evening and to-morrow evening Jordan Hall will be the scene of an amateur musical show given by the R. H. White Mutual Benefit Association members who have trained for their roles during the past four weeks. The show will be a benefit, under the personal direction of John J. Cahill. The talent assembled will eclipse all previous efforts of the kind undertaken by the association. Timothy F. Connolly, formerly of the old Howard Athenaeum, will be interlocutor, and among the amateurs scheduled to appear are Miss George H. Francis, whose services have been secured by special arrangement with the Jerome K. Hemlick Co., of this city. The committee in charge of the entertainment is striving to make this the feature event of the season. Incidentally, the soloists of Messrs. F. W. Magee, Wallace Rigby, W. J. Cahill, Dennis N. Sweeney and the Misses Gertrude McDevitt, Margaret McCarthy, Ethel Pillsbury, Margaret Desmond, Florence Mitchell and Nora Welch, assisted by the president, H. J. Driscoll.

SOUTH POLE HUNTER LANDS IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 13.—Dr. Douglas Mawson, who was with Lieutenant Shackleton on the famous dash for the South Pole, arrived here to-day on the Lusitania. Dr. Mawson, who is on his way to Australia, where he lives, was with the little party that reached the South magnetic pole. "Several other things of great importance," he said, "were discovered. I found evidences of plant life which seem to prove that during the tertiary and mesozoic ages warm temperature existed 500 miles from the South Pole."

SYNAGOGUE BOARD HONORS MR. BASCH

At a meeting of the trustees of Temple Ohabei Shalom in Union Park street, last evening, the trustees presented Nathan Basch a set of framed resolutions expressing the completion of his thirtieth year of service as vice-president and treasurer. Walter Brazzell of No. 1 Union place, East Boston, was in the East Boston District Court to-day, charged with perjury. LOSS OF LIFE IN MAINE FIRE

JACKMAN, Me., May 13.—Fred Gilliean of New Brunswick, a lumber camp cook, was burned to death in a $15,000 fire which destroyed the Armstrong House and the C. P. R. railroad station here early to-day. Henry Hays of Plaisville was badly burned and was taken to Bangor Hospital. Harry Landry, hotel employe, suffered injuries to one foot.

COTTON CROPS ARE THREE WEEKS LATE

YALE STUDENTS ARE OVERCOME

NEW YORK, May 13.—Three young Yale University sociologists, who with seventy-three of their fellow classmen were in New York to-day to study real sociology at first hand, fainted in a tour of the City Hospital on Blackwell's Island and had to be carried out into the fresh air to be revived.

The young men who fainted were George Brown of Concord, Vt.; A. J. Ely of Nashville, Tenn., and Ralph Durell of Somerville, Mass. They were being shown some of the ravages of disease due to conditions in the city and what they saw proved too much for their nerves. The seventy-five men are under the care of Prof. Thurlow Bailey of the department of economics at Yale.

They are stopping at Mills Hotel No. 3 and to-day added to their adventures by visits to the University settlement, the educational alliance and to Ellis Island, where they were received by Commissioner of Immigration Williams, a former Yale man. They go back to New Haven to-night.

Ralph Durell is the son of Medical Examiner T. M. Durell of Somerville. At Dr. Durell's home to-day it was said that no word had reached him of Ralph's fainting in the New York institution. They did know that he was a member of the visiting party, however.

An address by Dean Harry S. Ross followed, after which the diplomas were awarded by President Henry L. Southwick. The names of three successful candidates for scholarships were announced. Kimley Fay Story won the "Fels"; Sara K. Dobson, the "Proctor"; Verona Sheldon Petty, the "Sorority Phi Mu Gamma" scholarships. A reception followed the exercises. There were fifty-nine graduates and twenty received diplomas in the teachers' and post-graduate courses.

HEINZE FREED, RENEWS FIGHT ON OIL TRUST

NEW YORK, May 13.—Acquitted of the charge of violating the United banking laws amid one of the most emotional scenes ever witnessed in the United States Circuit Court, F. Augustus Heinze announced to-day that he is going back to Montana, and there will be a moment of his fortune again build up great wealth.

Undaunted by a long period of hard luck, he is going to grapple once more with his old foes, and one of the most dramatic battles in the history of the Wall is expected.

Revenge is his aim.

The copper man who at the height of the Standard Oil clique bet it to known that he would take up the fight where he left it off six-odd years ago, in spite of the fact that his former struggle with the "system" cost him millions. The greater part of his fortune was wiped away in the panic of 1907.

Since that time, he declared to-day, his fight with the Government has cost him between $150,000 and $200,000, in loss of credit and for legal expenses. He attributes all his troubles to the Standard Oil Company, and a guilty conflict is coming.

There is little likelihood of the Government pressing the case pending further against Heinze. This is an indictment charging him with conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice in sending a witness out of the country pursuit was instituted against Heinze, his brothers Otto and Arthur and the brother-in-law, Max H. Schaltes, were jubilant to-day. They had all in the morning's light.

Public Inspector Daniel McKay does not believe that the affair is a joke but the efforts of some unknown society to get some money out of a helpless woman. The police have obtained several clews and arrests are expected soon.

TRAIN BANDITS CAUGHT.

PHOENIX, Ari., May 13.—Word reached here to-day that the two bandits who held up the Phoenix and Maricopa passenger train near the Gila River Wednesday had been captured on the desert and were taken to Casa Grande temporarily.

QUINCY WOMAN IS THREATENED BY BLACK HAND

The Quincy police department is trying to unravel the mystery of a "Black Hand" letter received by Mrs. Vienna M. Ross, a seventy-year-old widow of No. 75 Spilly street, demanding $500 under penalty of death. Mrs. Ross is at her home under the care of a physician.

The letter was received Tuesday. It bore all earmarks of Quincy and read as follows:

"You are condemned to death. If you want to live bring $500. You know the little closet which belongs to the drug store of Craig's building. Put the money under the wall near the big stone. If has to here the tenth day of the month at 12 o'clock in the night. I will send several of my men there to get it. I pity you if you do not bring it there.

"We will kill you and everyone in your family. Don't think of escaping for we will find you if you go to the end of the world. Nothing is impossible for us. If you inform the police we will know it for you will be shadowed. Our revenge is severe. Perhaps you have heard of some one whose leader is Luigi Giovanne. You also think you are safe because we want such a small sum. We don't want more. If you do not, I know if you are rich. If you bring it alone no harm will come to you, but if you have someone else you we will kill you. If you do not bring the money you will not see the next morning's light.

"BLACK HAND."

FIVE KILLED ON TORPEDO BOAT

BERLIN, May 13.—Five men were killed and two injured in an explosion on board the German torpedo boat S33 near Heligoland to-day.

This is the seventh serious accident to the Kaiser's navy within a year. The result is a great public outcry for an inquiry into the navy's efficiency, aroused as the result of the accident to-day. The torpedo boat was fairly damaged and rendered useless. The details of the accident were not contained in the first dispatches to the capital and the officials by the admiralty refused to satisfy the publics interest in the affair. It became known, however, that but for the heroism of the officer in command the vessel would probably have gone down with all hands.

CHINESE HOLY WAR SPREADS

CANTON, May 13.—The holy war on the Christians is spreading rapidly in the provinces of Szechuen, Kweichau and Kwangtung, according to advices received here, and the situation in those provinces is as bad as it has been in Hunan since the uprising against the missionaries last month.

Native Christians are being tortured on every hand, and hundreds of thousands of incendiary proclamations, inciting a general uprising on May 25, are taking circulated, despite the authorities' efforts to curb the propaganda as well as the outrages.

Not only are native Christians and foreigners the objects of the wave of hatred, but it has a political significance in that it is taking the form of an attack on the reigning Manchu dynasty.

FOOD EXPERTS TELL WHY COST OF LIVING HAS GONE SO HIGH

Incomes of a hundred million families throughout the world have been cut almost in half by the advance in the cost of foodstuffs, clothing and rents. Just what has caused this remarkable advance, felt all over the world, but greatest in the United States, is told in various ways by leading authorities in the current Cosmopolitan magazine.

Practically all the college professors blame the increase in the supply of gold, despite the average man's honest declaration: "You can search me." Charles Edward Russell blames the gold standard, a monometallic system which he says makes for rigidity and does not allow for balancing an advance in the supply of the metal. Frank Greene, managing editor of Bradstreet's Journal, does not blame any one particular condition for the rise. He finds it in extravagance and all the other causes that the public sees.

Among the other contributors to the symposium are John Mitchell, Professor Seligman of Columbia and Secretary of Agriculture Wilson. Some of the opinions of experts on the subject are reprinted from the magazine.

By E. R. A. SELIGMAN,
Professor of Economics, Columbia University.

Prices of commodities are their values expressed in terms of money—that is, under modern conditions, of gold. A general rise of prices must, therefore, mean a depreciation of gold; and when there are no market changes in the conditions of credit a fall in the value of gold is always the result of an increase in its output. Unless there is some change in the supply of, or the demand for, gold, there can be no change in the general price level.

The only way in which all things can rise in price simultaneously, even though some rise more than others, is through a relative increase in the supply of gold. From 1845 to 1896, when the gold supply was augmented enormously, there was at the same time a revolution in transportation. So that the force of the increase in the gold supply was partly corrected by a growth in the demand, with the consequence that general prices rose only slightly. But since 1897, when another enormous increase in the gold supply has occurred, there has been no corresponding revolution in industry, trade, or agriculture, and as a result prices are soaring.

All the other alleged causes are unwilling to explain the situation. To say that the rising prices are due to trusts will not explain a similar rise of prices in cases where there are no trusts in those particular commodities in this country, or no trusts at all in other countries, where the rose of prices is also well marked. To say that higher prices are due to the tariff does not explain the similar rise of prices in England, where there is no protective tariff.

To say that higher prices are due to labor unions does not explain the rise of prices in the Orient, where there are no labor unions. To say that rising prices are due to the growth in population does not explain the falling prices of a decade ago, when population increased virtually at the same rate. It is obvious, then, that, apart from the minor oscillations in any one commodity, the general rise in the level of prices can be explained only by a cause which attaches equally to all prices.

By JAMES WILSON,
United States Secretary of Agriculture.

In 1909 the Department of Agriculture made a searching statistical and comparative investigation of the margin that exist between the farmer, the wholesaler, and retailer and the consumer of farm products. It was found that the farmer has shared in the general rise in prices but not in such a large degree of profit as the retailer. Particularly is this true in the prices of meat in the smaller cities of the United States.

The farmer is usually surprised by unforeseen profits in the foodstuffs he grows. He is by no means a skilful agitator for equitable prices. The wholesaler—the term includes, presumably, the so-called food trusts of the country—is governed more by the actual realization of the farmer products to the farmer himself than by their value when sold. He is skilful in taking advantage of market fluctuations and of the immediate hurrying demands of his customers, who require more service per capita than in years gone by, finds it possible to increase prices beyond the farmer's valuation of the produce with the wholesaler's profit added on. For instance, the increase in the prices of meat, which directly affects the consumer, is made by the retail costs, not by the wholesale costs. Local conditions, which vary materially, account for this.

For the fifty cities throughout the United States for which detailed figures were made, the mean gross profits in selling beef—that is, the total retail cost charged to consumers above the wholesale cost paid by the retailers—is 36 per cent.

The reason for the increased price of meat are in conditions that seem to endure—increase the retailer. There are services in connection with a city grocery that people demand which are extremely costly. They want delivery of goods, perhaps by special trip and also some one to come and take their order. All these raise the prices.

HOUSE KILLS PICKET BILL

Following the attack made on the bill by the New England Shoe and Leather Association, the House to-day defeated the Tinkham "Peaceful Persuasion" bill by a rising vote of 29 to 52. A roll call was refused. Representative Riley of Malden gave notice that he would move reconsideration Monday. The bill would allow peaceful picketing by strikers or their friends during labor disputes. It passed the Senate after one of the biggest fights of the year.

BILL TO BAR FIGHT NEWS

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Congress has had its attention called to the Jeffries-Johnson fight that is scheduled for this Summer in California. It is known a bill introduced by Representative Walter L. Smith of Iowa, one of Speaker Cannon's lieutenants, nobody outside of that state can receive any news of the fight, and no one any pictures of it, unless the law is repealed.

His bill prohibits the transportation from one State to another or in a territory and the receiving from a foreign country of any news of a prize fight. News as to the betting odds before the fight is also banned in the bill.

While rolling a hoop in front of his home at No. 94 Bolton street, South Boston, today, John Maltway, four years old, was knocked down and run over by a big van owned by Webster & Co. and driven by a negro. The youngster was hurried to the City Hospital, where it was found that his left leg was broken. Bystanders say that the driver did not see the boy.

"There's more contentment in a Harlem flat than in a Newport villa any day."

"People are living nowadays on what my chauffeur calls the high speed, and they won't stop even to toot their horns at the crossing."

"Let me tell you, young man, that in this world happiness doesn't follow riches. Riches follow happiness."

"Old women with one foot in the grave and the other in Wall Street often say things they don't mean."

Mrs. Hetty Green, a Massachusetts woman and one of the richest in the world, is to appear on the stage after making many millions of dollars in financial transactions that shocked her in a short time in current life and activities by a commercial pronouncement.

While she is about to give up her life role of making money she is being put upon the stage as the chief and most interesting character in a new play, John D. Rockefeller is the only other multi-millionaire of his era to be thus honored. Mrs. Green will not be presented as a stage character by the use of her own name—one which is almost as familiar to the people of the United States as that of President Taft.

In the play called "The Spendthrift" there is a character mentioned in the cast as Gretchen Jans, which is played by Miss Mattie Ferguson with a make-up which causes her to look wonderfully like the enormously wealthy old lady, who is economical that she has often been known, when in Boston, to go into a restaurant in "the Alley," which was patronized by newsboys.

Wears a Cheap Dress.

On the stage is this institution Mrs. Green is attired in a rusty black gown and a flower trimmed bonnet. Both, and the black handbag which the actress carries, look exactly like the apparel which officials of the Chemical National Bank have become very familiar with. Mrs. Green has vast transactions with that financial institution and she always sits in a certain corner when she visits it.

Porter Emerson Browne is the author of the play and besides Aunt Gretchen it has for characters her two nieces who are dependent upon her. One niece elopes and marries a young and promising Wall Street man and the other goes to live in the luxurious home of her sister. The marrying niece is extremely extravagant and is about ruined her husband when the play begins.

The married niece calls Aunt Gretchen on her assistance on all sorts of petty things which the dramatist considers very characteristic of Mrs. Hetty Green. Aunt Gretchen sums up the situation as regards the harassed husband by asking him:

"Richard, are you a man or a mouse? Why don't you put your foot down and say that this wanton waste of money—of everything—shall end here and now? I had charge of Frances before you took her off my hands. I know her nerve, blood, vanity and laziness. You've let her run you and her into debt, and you can't see daylight. If you expect to get out you'll have to learn to run her or she won't be enough left to pay for the excavating."

Criticises Married Niece.

What she says to her married niece is quite soothing. She remarks:

"You've neglected your duties as a wife. You've denied your obligations as a mother. All this talk about woman's sphere makes me sick. A woman's sphere is first to be a mother; second, to be a good mother. Before she can be a doctor, a lawyer or a carpenter or a society leader or a suffragette. But if she's a mother first, in a hundred years there won't be any women left to bear children.

"Good mothers haven't any time to be selfish. After you've bathed all the children at night with a little new-born baby whimpering for your attention, it won't make much difference whether the breakfast table is set with silver or pewter, will it?

She tells her nieces she is opposed to $2000 gowns $50 hats and $12 sleeves. When the hand of the unmarried one is sought by a young physician, more practical than philosophy is handed to the suitor. The stage Hetty Green says:

"There's more contentment in a Harlem flat than in a Newport villa any day. When a child sees its father and mother after they were married, she and I slept in the bed and he on the floor in his clothes. That's how rich he was when he got married. And they were more than happiness than all the people on Fifth avenue from Thirty-fourth street to the park. People nowadays are living on what my chauffeur calls the high speed, and they won't stop even to toot their horns at the crossing."

Doesn't Approve of Theatre.

In the end the play discloses that Aunt Gretchen has a motherly heart beneath an exterior which appears to harbor no soft spot. People in the audience at the Hudson Theatre in New York, where the play is being presented by Frederick Thompson are very glad to discover that Aunt Gretchen a stage likeness of Mrs. Green, who, it may be remarked, has never approved of theatregoing. She regards it as an improvident proceeding, even though she has made wealth herself than the whole of the Theatre Trust.

HEROD AND THE CHILDREN

By HOWARD SINGLETON TAYLOR.

I.

"Kill me the children," said Herod—
"Slay!"
And the red sword flashed in the sun:
Flashed up and fell—in a merciful way,
For the killing was speedily done;
And the wails of the victims were suddenly stilled
In the old-fashioned way in which Herod killed.

II.

But to slaughter the innocents inch by inch
In the shop, in the mill, in the mine;
To grapple them down in the terrible clinch
Of a dollar-mad, daily design,
And slowly destroy them, both spirit and frame—
Why, Herod himself would call it a shame!

PATRIOTISM IS MAY IDEA FOR BOY SCOUTS

Though but to its inception, the American Boy Scout movement is rapidly gaining adherents in Boston, and men prominent in boys' work, and other leading citizens are showing increased interest in the idea of forming an organization the scope of whose work will take in all up to twenty years of age and including every association already organized whose purpose is to make good citizens out of the Boston boys of to-day.

At the present time in Boston there are a great many organizations started with the end in view of helping the boys. There are boys' brigades, school cadet corps, and many others. One of the best of the more recent movements for boys is the Civic Guard, started by Frank O. Carpenter, where the boys make it their object to secure information on existing civic conditions, and make reports of evils with suggestions of remedies. This is an excellent scheme, as is also the Progressive Union, started by Miss Marion Foster Washburn. The movements have the same end in view. The American Boy Scout movement, as to the scope in its scope, however, confining to no limits the ways in which the boys may prove themselves useful to the community and all the same time be saved from pernicious endeavors.

In carrying out the idea of inculcating the right principles in the boys under his charge, and thus paving the way for excellence in advancing the Scout movement, Boy Scout Edward H. Knox of the Y. M. C. A. to-day announced a program which the boys are well provided for, and which is mapped out some interesting work for his boys.

From now until May 31 will be the patriotic month, in which the boys will study rules to gain of patriotic duty, and will lend first time to time talks on patriotic subjects.

June will be outing month. In September, after the vacation period, will be the High School month, with walks to the high schools and addresses by school officials. Charity month comes in December, with investigations by the boys of the charitable institutions. January will be the library month, with talks by Boston authors. Fraternity is to be historical. March the month of origins study for the boys, and April the civic month.

This boys' department is a factory of good citizenship, says Secretary Keppler, "and I have no doubt our work will make good material for future Scouts."

DOCTOR SAYS DREAMS HELP CURE DISEASE

Dr. A. A. Brill, clinical assistant in the department of psychiatry and neurology to Columbia University, says that dreams are the best symptoms of disease. He has robbed the dream of its primeval mystery and dissected it. He says that all dreams have a meaning and that they are invaluable in the diagnosis and treatment of many nervous diseases. He goes so far as to insist that the interpretation of dreams discloses the factors which underlie these maladies.

"The dream is not a senseless jumble, but a perfect mechanism," says Dr. Brill. "When analyzed, it is found to contain the fulfilment of a wish; it always treats of the inmost thought of personality and for that reason gives us the best access to the unconscious.

"No psychoanalysis is complete, nay, possible, without the analysis of dreams. The dream not only helps us to interpret symptoms, but it is often an invaluable instrument in diagnosis and treatment. The curative factors of many neuroses are extremely vague and unsatisfactory to the patient, and it is by means of the dream that the underlying factors are disclosed."

Dr. Brill divides dreams into three kinds, those which represent an unrepressed wish as fulfilled; those which represent the fulfilment of an unrepressed wish in an entirely concealed form, and those which represent the realization of a repressed wish in a form inefficiently or only partially concealed.

NURSE PREVENTS A FIRE PANIC

Through the heroism of Miss Mae G. Rodgers, a district nurse, a panic was averted among the hundred or more people, men, women and children, living in the Winthrop chambers, a four-story brick apartment house at No. 208 Winthrop road. Breaking early to-day, when fire was discovered in the basement that necessitated two alarms and caused a damage of $5,000.

PAPER MONEY TO BE MADE SMALLER

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The desire of Secretary MacVeagh for a uniform style of paper money of a more convenient size will be realized. A. Piatt Andrew, director of the mint, will soon take up the task of reducing new treasury and bank notes. Mr. MacVeagh's idea is that the size can be reduced by one-fifth, so that in size they will be smaller than European bank notes.

MOTHER LOVE LOCATES BABY

LYNN, May 13.—The maternal instinct of Mrs. Mary E. Hurlburt, which made her refuse to believe that her child was dead, and induced her to force her husband to confess that he had abandoned the child taken from her while she was ill, will probably result in the return of the child by the State Board of Charities, which is searching the records to locate it.

At the time of the child's birth, Mrs. Hurlburt, who is now divorced, was living in Chelsea with her husband. On June 23, 1907, while she was still confined to her bed, her husband took the baby away. When she recovered and asked for it he said he had died.

INVESTIGATE 'SPLASH' DANCE

NEWPORT, R. I., May 13.—An investigation is being had at the naval torpedo station regarding the so-called "splash" of the torpedo station Benefit Association of civilian employes, numbering about 200, the majority of them attended the affair the night of February 6.

The "splash," included the dancing of women who were scantily clad. Boston for the occasion, and the performance as given by these women and assisted by some of the employes of the government is claimed to be the cause of the investigation.

The charges are that of an entertainment immoral in its nature and being a scandalous affair. The testimony of each of the 200 or more witnesses is being taken by the board, and will mean several weeks sitting of the board and marking the first case of the kind in the civilian side of the United States Navy.

The EVENING AMERICAN guarantees to advertisers the largest circulation by far of any daily newspaper in Boston and over 200,000 more than the next highest evening paper, and over 75,000 more than all the other Boston evening papers combined. Circulation books open to all.

LODGE LAUDED AND BLAMED AT BANQUET

Praise and blame both were accorded Senator Lodge at the banquet of the members of the Legislature at Young's Hotel. Former Speaker Cushing of Andover presided. Former Representative William V. L. Newton said: "If I were a member of the Legislature to-day nothing would please me more than to give Mr. Lodge my vote." Former Representative Thomas F. Fay of this city, declared he believe that there are other men in the State of Massachusetts who could fill the office of Senator as well as our distinguished guest."

ALBANY ROAD MAY NOW ISSUE BONDS

The railroad commissioners have issued an order permitting the Boston & Albany Railroad to issue 4 per cent. twenty-day bonds to the amount of $2,000,000, for the purpose of meeting the cost of certain permanent improvements.

BRIDE FINDS HOPED-FOR FORTUNE GONE

Hopes for a fortune of $100,000 or more expected to come to the wife of Donald Brian, teh South Boston boy who had so much to do with the success of "The Merry Widow," have been dissipated by the disclosure in court proceedings in New York. The trustees of the estate of her late father, Joseph J. Dickson, report that since 1908 they have had control of the entire property and that after settling the claims against the estate there is left $37,000 with spear. Donald Brian married Florence Pope, divorced wife of C. H. Pope of New York, last March. She is considered one of the twelve most beautiful women in the world.

COLLEGE NOT FATAL, SAYS "UNCLE JOE"

NEW HAVEN, Ct., May 13.—"To a bright young man who has anything in him a college course is not necessarily fatal to success. That is my view of it," said Speaker Cannon in a discussion in the Yale News, of the value of a college education. He continues:

"The human animal on the average, is not worth his salt if he is incapable of making his own way.

"The greater rewards come in business, not in politics. A good business man is much better off than a poor politician."

BIG FLEET TO OPEN CANAL

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 13.—That an immense fleet of United States warships shall from Hampton roads through the Panama canal in 1915 and thence to San Francisco, thereby inaugurating the opening of the great waterway, is the suggestion of Washington commercial bodies who desire that this city and San Francisco have simultaneous expositions when the canal is opened.

The Chamber of Commerce, which is desirous of co-operating with the Californians to have Washington and not New Orleans or Boston named as the show place on the Atlantic side will begin active measures to capture the exposition for Washington at a mass meeting to be held Tuesday. San Francisco might have a commercial show, the Washingtonians say, while Washington may have one with national and historical features.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 200,000 more than its next highest competitor and 75,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

PURSE OF GOLD FOR FR. SUPPLE

Many friends and acquaintances congratulated Rev. Dr. P. J. Supple to-day over the success of the reception tendered to him last night in Intercolonial Hall, Roxbury, when a purse containing several thousand dollars in gold was given to him by residents of the parishes of St. John's and St. Hugh's. The presentation address was made by Joseph H. O'Neil. Mayor Fitzgerald was among the 1,000 persons present, and he made a graceful address.

The priest had just returned from a trip abroad, which had been taken for his health. The apostolic benediction of the Pope received by Rev. Dr. Supple, he said, hastened his recovery.

"To know once again in the benign presence of the holy father and to secure his apostolic benediction for myself and for my people, was a supreme privilege which hastened my progress to health and strength," said the priest.

The priest's relish has prompted this gathering has increased more than I can say the joy of my home-coming."

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

DRUGGIST PAYS $1,000 FOR LIQUOR

ALFRED, Me., May 13.—Fines aggregating between $900 and $1000 for liquor selling were imposed on George H. Hill, a Sanford druggist, and paid. He was charged with ten single sales, for which he was fined $50 and costs each; with issuing a common seller, for which he was fined $100 and costs, and with conducting a nuisance. The latter charge was continued. Brown's clerk, E. Goodfare, paid fines of $50 and costs for three single sales and $100 and costs for being a common seller. Brown sold out his business last week.

More AMERICANS are read in the homes in Boston than any other paper.

"MYSTERY" CLEARED IN MAN'S DEATH

The mystery which was reported to surround the death of Joseph O'Brien of No. 9 Mystic street was cleared to-day in the case of Medical Examiner Berry that the man died of acute alcoholism. Mrs. O'Brien, widow of the dead man, was quoted as telling the police that her husband had been a drinker by a long spell, but that he mended money from him.

Few hours after returning home, Medical Examiner Berry performed an autopsy last night. Report spread that O'Brien's skull was fractured. Captain Hiller of East Dedham street police station had not been investigating. "Fracture of the skull" proved to be only a slight cut back of the ear. The funeral took place to-day.

AMERICAN MAKES FIRST TEST HERE OF PHOTO TELEGRAPH MACHINE

Preparations are complete for the first test ever made in this country of the instrument to send photographs over the wire, just as telegrams are now sent, or telephone messages carried on. The trial takes place to-morrow noon.

The instrument, hardly larger than a good-sized phonograph, has been installed in the BOSTON AMERICAN office, where the tests are to be made. A special wire has been opened between Boston and New York.

The Boston committee of prominent men which will watch the first transmission has been chosen. Its members are Governor Eben S. Draper, Mayor Fitzgerald, President Richard C. McLaurin of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Frederick W. Hamilton of Tufts College. T. Thorne Baker of London, England, the inventor of the contrivance, supervised the establishment of the machine. No change whatever will be necessary in the telephone wire which will transmit the pictures. The principle is practically the same as that on which the telegraph operation works.

It will take just four minutes for the picture, which is put on at the New York end, to be completely reproduced here, and vice-versa. Even the shading appears on the copy.

The photographs to be sent to Boston are those of the committee which will watch the experiment. It is planned to have Governor Draper's picture and that of Mayor Fitzgerald come first, and in their presence.

The process has been brought to a state where it is a commercial possibility. Originally, when the science was in the experimental stage, the cost of transmitting a picture by wire was about $200. By Park's invention this has been reduced considerably.

PITIFUL CASE OF SKIN DISEASE

When Two Months Old, Baby had Pimples Spread All Over Body—Broke and Left Skin Like a Scald—An Awful Sight—Doctor Afraid to Put His Hands on the Child.

CURED AT SLIGHT COST BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Our baby when two months old was suffering with terrible eczema from head to foot, all over her body. The baby looked just like a skinned rabbit. We were unable to put clothes on her. At first it seemed to be a few scattered pimples. They would break the skin and peel off leaving the underneath skin red as though it were scalds. Then a few more pimples would appear and spread all over the body leaving the baby all raw without skin from head to foot. On top of her head there appeared a heavy scab a quarter of an inch thick. It was awful to see so small a baby look as she did. Imagine! The doctor was afraid to put his hands to the child. We tried several doctors' remedies but all failed.

"Then we decided to try Cuticura. By using the Cuticura Ointment we softened the scab and it came off. Under this, where the real matter was, by washing with the Cuticura Soap and applying the Cuticura Ointment, a new skin soon appeared. We also gave baby four drops of the Cuticura Resolvent three times daily. After three days you could see the body gaining a little skin which would peel off and heal underneath. Now the baby is four months old. She is a fine picture of a fat little baby and all is well. We only used one cake of Cuticura Soap, two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. If people would know what Cuticura is there would be few suffering with eczema. Mrs. Joseph Kressmann, 7 St. John's Place, Ridgewood Heights, L. I., N. Y., Apr. 30 and May 4, 1909."

Cuticura Soap (25c.), Cuticura Ointment (50c.), and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, (25c. per vial of 60) are sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass.

Beware of So-called Ones—Imitations

Unscrupulous dealers, mindful only of their profit and caring nothing for the health of their patrons, are offering for sale low grade mixtures, which they tell you are "as good as" Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

Some go so far as to try to make you believe it is Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. These cheap concoctions are foisted on the people with the intent to deceive.

When a remedy has been before the public for more than half a century, has been prescribed and used by the best doctors and in prominent hospitals, and has carried the blessing of health into so many thousands of homes as Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has, imitations are bound to arise. They may imitate the bottle and label only—no one can imitate the contents.

STUDENTS TAKE MAIL WAGON

The United States mail wagon which was stolen from Postoffice square by two students who wanted to get to Cambridge, but were shy of cab or carfare and unwilling to walk, was located by Federal Inspector Swift in a stable in Cambridge.

Under the impression that the wagon had been stolen by mail thieves and that it held letters, Inspector Swift was put on the trail. Some one described two sportily dressed youths climb into the wagon and drive off.

The team is the property of the Castle Square Ridge Company and is rented to the Government for $200 a year. The owners were obliged to pay for the day's board of the horse. An effort is being made to identify the students.

GREAT INTEREST IN NEW YORK OVER THE COMING TEST

NEW YORK, May 12.—Widespread interest has been aroused in the realm of science over the demonstration of photography by wire which is to be conducted tomorrow by the American.

At the office of the American will gather at noon a committee of prominent men who will witness the sending of their own photographs over a telephone wire from the office of the Boston American. When these photographs have been received here there will be a group of pictures of Boston men transmitted to that city over the same wire.

A duplicate set of apparatus has been installed in the offices of the American here and the Boston American. The machines are tested to-day. T. Thorne Baker of London, who perfected the wire photography system, having gone to Boston to arrange details at that end of the line.

On the committee to witness the demonstration here, the first of its kind in this country, will be:

Former Judge E. H. Gary, president of the United States Steel Corporation.

William G. McAdoo, president of the Hudson Tunnel Company.

Henry Clews, the banker.

Frank Hedley, General Manager of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company.

Emerson McKeeldie, general manager of the S. S. McClure Publishing Company.

Waldemar R. Kaempffert, representing Charles Allen Munn, president of Munn & Co., publishers of the Scientific American.

All of the members of the committee have furnished the American with their photographs and they will experience the sensation of seeing them "telegraphed" from Boston.

Mr. Baker believes the transmission of pictures across the Atlantic will be accomplished within a year. When he is through with his work for the American he will begin arrangements for installing a system by which that test will be made.

FIRE WIPES OUT GRAIN ELEVATOR

EAST BRIDGEWATER, May 13.—The elevator and plant of the Eastern Grain Company, owned by Walter Little, was burned. The loss was $25,000.

The fire was discovered soon after 8 o'clock. The headway it had gained rendered all efforts to save the elevator fruitless and the firemen turned their attention toward saving the shoe factory of the L. J. White Company and the East Bridgewater depot of the New Haven road, both of which were in danger.

HARVARD ATHLETE ENTERS 'CHANGE

CATHOLICS TO GIVE FUNDS TO AID SEMINARY

At all the masses in the Catholic churches of Boston next Sunday the annual collection will be taken up for St. John's Seminary at Brighton.

A circular letter from Archbishop O'Connell to the pastors, drawing their attention to this collection, was read at each mass last Sunday in the churches of the archdiocese. The archbishop's letter set forth the strong claims of the seminary upon the faithful for liberal financial aid to enable the Fathers of St. Sulpice, who are in charge of the great ecclesiastical school, to carry on effective their important work of educating young men for the priesthood.

St. John's Seminary was founded in 1884 by Archbishop Williams, who invited the priests of the Sulpician order as the directing force. The mission of the institution is to mould the minds and form the characters of pious young men who are desirous of devoting their lives to the priesthood.

In its brief history the names of many distinguished leaders have been stamped upon its records. One was the Very Rev. John Hogan, who was an ecclesiastic of world-wide fame. Born in Ireland and educated in France, he was for thirty years before coming to the Brighton Seminary professor of theology at the great school of Sulpice in Paris. The other teacher of eminence was the late Father Charles H. Bowen. The present rector is the Very Rev. Francis P. Harvey, S.S., who has for his colleagues a large corps of able professors.

NINE INDICTED ON CHARGES BY YOUNG GIRLS

WORCESTER, May 13.—Nine men were indicted by the Grand Jury here on the charges preferred by a number of young girls in this city a few months ago. The crusade begun by the police following the confessions of the girls has resulted in four more indictments than were originally planned. Five men were arrested at first. Nine are now under arrest.

Those against whom indictments were returned are: Judson W. Hall, a wealthy real estate dealer; Patrick J. Judge, a prominent printer; Henry C. Owens, Louis La Chappelle, Napoleon Dufresne, Alfred Brais, Isaac Wunsman and Ernest Butterworth, all of Worcester, and Edward C. Fiye, a hotel clerk of Leominster.

The original arrests of these nine men caused a sensation in Worcester that has not yet died down. All the men are prominent in the social, business and public life of the city. Judson W. Hall, one of the principals, is a wealthy real estate dealer. For years he had lectured before societies on public and private morality. He had flooded the newspapers with suggestions for moral reform, and often held up the moral standards of the European cities as a safe guide for Worcester to follow.

Patrick J. Judge is a printer and has been prominent in Worcester for close to half a century. He has a large family and is wealthy.

All the men are over fifty and some of them are over sixty. The girls are all under sixteen. Some of them are not more than twelve. They are daughters of poor parents in the tenement house districts.

SHOOTER FOUND INSANE.

NEW HAVEN, May 13.—Walter K. Newport, an insurance agent, charged with shooting with intent to murder Howard C. Welsh, one of the best known attorneys of New Haven, was found not guilty by reason of insanity by a jury in the Superior Court. The court at once ordered his commitment to the State Hospital for the Insane at Middletown for a term of five years.

SYMPHONY PLAYER DEAD.

Benjamin Cutter, formerly a member of the Symphony Orchestra and a musical educator and author, is dead from heart disease at his Jamaica Plain home. He was a member of the Symphony Orchestra under Henschel and Gericke and since 1896 had been teacher of harmonic analysis at the New England Conservatory of Music.

VOTING MACHINE RESOLVE IS PASSED

After charges had been made by two Democratic Senators that the Republican State machine was behind the voting machines with which it is proposed to equip all polling places within Massachusetts, the Senate by a roll-call vote of eighteen to twelve, passed to be engrossed a resolve for an amendment to the State Constitution to permit the use of voting machines at all elections.

COLD STORAGE BILL OPPOSED BY UTLEY

Charles H. Utley, president of the Quincy Market Cold Storage Company, testified before the Senate committee on manufactures against the bill introduced recently by Senator Lodge to prohibit the holding of food products in storage more than a year. He said it would be found exceedingly difficult to properly tag goods placed in storage, and asked the committee how it would label turnips, peanuts, pickles, shrimps, bananas and potatoes to meet the requirements of the proposed law.

BODY OF RAILROAD VICTIM UNIDENTIFIED

The body of a man of about thirty-five killed by a freight train on the Union Freight Railroad in Atlantic avenue near State street last night, lies at the North Grove street morgue to-day, unidentified. The inanimate form was dragged 140 feet under the wheels. Medical Examiner Magrath found an Eastern Steamship ticket in the clothes, which may lead to identification. Captain C. G. Ligerson of the schooner Mattie Brundage reports his nephew, Howard Ligerson, missing, and fears that the victim may have been his kinsman.

JEFFRIES TO BOX ON STAGE BEFORE FIGHT WITH JACK JOHNSON

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

JEFFRIES' TRAINING CAMP, ROWARDENNAN, Cal., May 13.—Sportsmen of San Francisco are to have an opportunity of seeing Jim Jeffries at glove play and judging for themselves what his condition it at the present time. Manager Jim Berger has agreed to a plan which provides for Jeffries appearing in a sparring bout at Dreamland on the night of May 27. The occasion will be one of the periodical nights of boxing which are known in the city as amateur shows, and it goes without saying that the appearance of Jeffries will be the star event of the evening.

"When the suggestion was first made," said Berger, "I didn't know what to think of it. After conferring with Jeffries it occurred to me that it would be a good chance to get a line on the fighting pulse of Jim Jeffries and as there have been so many conflicting opinions sent out from here in regard to Jim's condition, we decided to accept the invitation and give a public exhibition. The affair of course will have to be kept for itself. Jim will not box with either Bob Armstrong or Joe Choynski and possibly with Bob.

If some of the newspaperhers who, at various times, commented on Jeffries' seeming stiffness were to happen in on the big fellow right now they would marvel at the change which has taken place.

Jeff Loses Grouch.

Jeffries is both cheerful and cordial and in a genuine way. Frankness is all things in the cardinal point in his character and it would be next to impossible for him to assume a strain that he did not possess. He is free to admit that until very recently the task of removing the flesh which accumulated in his hermit years soured his disposition somewhat and increased his natural reserve.

He argues that the crisis in his preparation, as it were, has passed, and he is down to bedrock in the matter of avoirdupois and furthermore, that his wind is as sound as a bell and that the last lingering doubt in respect to the outcome of heroic training work has been swept away. In consequence he is now in a happy frame of mind. His every word and movement proclaim the fact.

Apart from the comfort which the knowledge of hard work well done brings him, Jeffries is fortunate at present in being surrounded by those he likes best.

To begin with there is his brave little wife, who, still wan-faced from her recent illness, watches with a pleased expression each morsel of white meat disappear into each mouthful of pie, or whatever else Partners Choynski and Armstrong.

Happy Party at Camp.

Brother Jack Jeffries and his wife are also here, and so are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kipper of Los Angeles. Jack Jeffries' partner in the saloon business and apart from that is one of the big fellow's most trusted friends. Herbert MacKenzie, another close friend of Jeffries, is here with his wife, and last but not least Mr. and Mrs. Jack Woolley of Oakland. Dick Adams, the cook par excellence of the camp, will hold, is still among those present and last but not least, there is Walter C. Kelley of Virginia Judge fame.

The presence of such a number of friends and relatives among the spectators does not cause Jeff in any degree inconsiderate of his sparring partners than he is ordinary times, and there is no desire to "show off" at the expense of his assistants, and orders that they crowd him with all the vim at their command. The reason for this is that it affords opportunities for testing certain plans he has formulated for carrying the fight to Jack Johnson when the fateful 4th comes around. He guesses his men, but does not pound them unmercifully.

At that, of course, where such effort is demanded, an unintentional hard knock occasionally falls to the lot of some one in the game. Choynski, while sparring with the big fellow, bumped into a high left hook that Jeffries was rehearsing, and had a puffed and purple eye to show as a souvenir.

JEFF'S TRANERS DON'T LIKE IDEA OF PUBLIC EXHIBITION

JEFFRIES' TRAINING CAMP, Rowardennan, Cal., May 13.—It cannot be said that Bob Armstrong and Joe Choynski are eagerly looking forward to May 27 when the former champion will make his appearance in an amateur boxing show in San Francisco for the purpose of giving the general public a line on his condition. They will be the goats.

Jeffries will naturally wish to make as good an impression as possible, and it goes without saying that his sparring partners will not be handing any too gently. This will be Jeffries's answer to foolish ones who have wrongly criticised him.

While Choynski did not express an opinion on the determination of Jeff to make a public appearance, it was evident he didn't receive the news with any great enthusiasm.

It was suggested to Jeff this morning that in case Jim Corbett arrives in time a three-round bout between himself and the ex-pugilist would prove a novel attraction.

"The public, no doubt, would like to see us in action," said he, "but it isn't likely Corbett would consent to such an arrangement. Although he will not reach here much before the date set for the exhibition, and there would be little or no time for him to limber up. If Jim should favor the idea, however, I am perfectly willing to make the exhibition a nine-round affair, three each with Armstrong, Choynski and Corbett."

Jeffries started at work bright and early this morning, and there was not a moment's idleness up to the noon hour, when, according to a rule established a couple of days ago, he broke off raiding for the afternoon's hike of the day. In addition to three-round bouts with Armstrong and Choynski Jeff took to the mountain trits in the road and spent considerable time at the punching bag and in the gymnasium.

CHOYNSKI SAYS CHARLIE WHITE WILL BE REFEREE

CHICAGO, May 13.—It is now believed that Charlie White of New York will referee the Jeffries-Johnson fight. Edward O. Westlake, a close friend of Joe Choynski, has received a telegram from the athletic commission which controls the ring, announcing that the telegram reads:

"A mountain out of a mole hill is this stuff about the big bout being declared off because of a disagreement over a referee. It simply will be skipped for that. Only the courts and an aggressive state attorney can keep the fight from going on at Emeryville track July 4. Charlie White, of New York, the man of all others the public would like best to see the third man in the ring, will be the selection."

JOHNSON STOPS TRAINING FOR TRIP TO COURT

By H. M. WALKER.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13.—Jack Johnson is treating progress uninterrupted while the big fellow went to Judge Cabaniss' court in response to a suit brought by San Fitzpatrick, his former manager, to recover $178 alleged to be due him for services during 1908. Fitzpatrick sued for judgment and attached Johnson on the eve of the big fellow's departure East after his fight with Ketchel. Johnson appealed the case and allowed it to go by default. Later he received a new trial on the ground that he was called away on important business. The case has been set for Friday, May 20.

Johnson this morning announced a slight change in the training program arranged earlier in the week. On days on which he appears in the ring he will do only five miles on the road instead of the fourteen or fifteen which will characterize his work on other days. It is likely also that a portion of the gymnasium exercise will be cut out. Johnson takes this action in the belief that the six weeks intervening between now and July 4 is more time than he requires to fit himself for the battle.

It looks foolish for me to think of doing six weeks' hard work for this fight," remarked Jack upon his return to the Seal Rock Hotel.

"I am confident that two weeks' work would put me in as good condition as I ever was in my life. I am not far from weight, and as to my physical condition that speaks for itself."

Johnson and Little still talk with certainty on the referee question. They insist that a referee will be chosen on conference day, and that it will not be Jim Jeffries's man who will complete the little party of three in the ring. Johnson argues that he is champion and as such has something to say in the selection of an arbitrator for a fight in which he meets a challenger.

A fourteen-mile turn on the road, a rubdown and an hour's work on the ballfield constituted the champion's training routine to-day. This is the hardest work he has done up to date. The big fellow was a bit sore and stiff when he left the Seal Rock Hotel to make a tour of the surrounding country in his automobile.

KETCHEL AND LEWIS MATCHED

NEW YORK, May 13.—Dan McKetrick lost no time in finding work for Willie Lewis and Stanley Ketchel for Tom Jones' dukes after returning from Europe. Last night a match was made between Lewis and Stanley Ketchel for Tom Jones' National A. C. on May 27. The weight announced was 158 pounds at 3 o'clock.

There is no question but that the bout will bring to fistic followers just as much as Sam Langford-Al Kubiak affair at the Fairmont next Tuesday night should please, because it will see the larger brand of glove men in action.

But is it safe? Once before the local people tried to put on Ketchel and Langford. Bang went the doors and New York was right dry for some time afterward. History in such matters has an uncommonly regular way of repeating itself.

RUBBER SPIKES TO PREVENT INJURY

A new invention for ball players—the Kelly ankle-injury rubber shoe plate—to meet spike—is the latest wrinkle to preserve the life of the ball tosser. Stephen J. Kelly of No. 79 Decatur street, Charlestown, and John H. Ferguson of No. 79 Medford street, are the humanitarians to produce the article, and the big league teams will give the appliance a try-out shortly. The rubber spikes are applied over the steel ones, and can be put on in a few seconds when a player gets on base.

MALDEN CHAMPION IN BOWLING LEAGUE

Malden practically won the championship of the Suburban Bowling League when it took three out of four points from Chelsea Square on Malden alleys. The league series will close next Thursday night for Malden, when it will meet Chelsea at Chelsea, but the outcome will not affect its standing.

Malden had a total pinfall of 1472. The best string total was made by Allen, 337. The Hodge was only one pin behind him. The best individual string was made by Allen with 131, while Hodge had 129.

MELLODY MEETS MARTIN TO-NIGHT

Quite a bunch of Boston fight fans will go down to Providence tonight to witness that fifteen-round mill between Honey Mellody and Terry Martin, the Philadelphia slugger, at the Thomas Theatre. They know what to expect on this fifth meeting of two such haymaker users as this couple of welterweights. And another thing this one of the few chances for a long distance bout.

The last time the pair met was at Manchester when Martin won and the defeat is the one black mark on Mellody's record in his present career of straight wins.

Naturally he is anxious to wipe out that victory of the Quaker and will force things from the tap of the gong.

NO GAMES ON DAY KING IS BURIED

NEW YORK, May 13.—Out of respect to the memory of the late King Edward and his people, all Eastern League baseball games scheduled for Friday, May 20, the day of the King's funeral, have been called off. Notice to that effect was sent out to-night by P. T. Powers, president of the league. Games scheduled for May 20 will be played instead as double-headers on May 21 along with the regular games.

YACHT CHANGES NAME AND ALSO OWNERS

Hollis Burgess, the Boston yachtsman, has purchased the Herreshoff 25-foot water line sloop "Nike" formerly owned by Victor I. Cumnock of New York. Mr. Burgess has re-named her "Yankee Girl" and will use her for racing and cruising along the Atlantic Coast this Summer.

"Yankee Girl" was formerly named "Oiseau" and "Virginia II." and was at one time owned by Harry Maxwell, the present owner of the schooner yacht "Queen." She is forty-three feet over all, thirty feet beam, six feet five inches draft and has a comfortable cabin.

BOSTON COLLEGE TO PLAY CONN. STATE

The Boston College nine will line up against the Rhode Island State team tomorrow at the Massachusetts avenue grounds for the first time. So far this season the Boston team has won five out of seven games played and expect to get away with the game tomorrow as they beat the University of Maine team two weeks ago in a closely contested game and that team is considered one of the best in the State.

The Boston team will have for its battery Harrington and Falvey who are considered to be the best men that have been at the college in the last ten years.

Harvard Athletic News

By W. E. BURTON

Both Harvard track coaches says that Reggie Foster gets into the Yale meet tomorrow Harvard will win, but that if he doesn't appear on the card Yale's chances will have to put up the stiffest kind of a fight to walk away with the honors. The matter of Harvard's chance for victory depends on this one athlete. Coaches Downing and Dillon both think it up to Foster and there is no doubt that if this lad's runner gets into the race he will pull the worsted in both the hundred and 220 dashes. His time for the last was ten seconds flat. The Elis have no one who can beat this time and the whole issue of the meet depends on Foster's reappearing.

"If Foster feels in shape, he will enter the meet," said Coach Downing. "He'll be the man to judge whether he is fit or not and if he says he's all right, in he goes. He has been pointing for this meet especially for the last few days and he says he feels in pretty good condition.

It doesn't require much stretch of the imagination to conjure up visions of the dope cells to convince one that Foster will be in the event tomorrow. There has been a lot of half baked talk both ways, but you needn't be surprised if you see Reggie take his set and make a getaway in his old familiar style when the pistol touches off the field of dash men tomorrow.

Furthermore, Foster appears to be in as good condition as ever, despite his stay at Stillman infirmary. He will be as fresh as morning dew and as fast as a young colt when he clears the cinders in the decisive numbers. Watch and see.

You can't keep a good man down. There never was a truer saying than that and the well wishers of Karl C. Long, familiarly known as "Bonegap," are yet going to see his star ascend to its proper place in Harvard baseball firmament. With Hicks overworked and Ernst batted out of the box, Long is needed and needed badly. He may not have the curves of a Mathewson, may not have the curves of a Mathewson, but he has speed and pluck and it wouldn't surprise many if he could step right into both occasionally. At least it's worth while giving him one or two games to show what chance. Several games have been dropped without him already.

Coach Pieper spent a considerable portion of yesterday afternoon with the Harvard ball tossers just how the different Princeton players gauged his delivery. That seems like the wrong sort of an attitude to take. From the baseball artist that the Crimson horsehide chasers have been handing out so far this season, will but a few surprising exceptions, it appears to be far more important to teach the Harvard players how they should hit the leather, than how their opponents are apt to work the pellet. Harvard hasn't had such a weak batting team in years as the one which represents them on the diamond this season. It may be easy to knock, but the Harvard team sets a good single by any of the Crimson batsmen is almost as rare as a day in the bridal month.

More AMERICANS are read in the homes in Boston than any other paper.

JUST GIRLS---Business Girl

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE business girl—all honor to her brave, little independent spirit—the product of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. She is the spirit of progress in its most beautiful form; for she is the mother of future generations of broad minded splendid citizens.

She is not one whit less womanly than her stay at home sisters.

The average man, even if he believes in independence in women in general would like to keep his own womankind by fos home and fireside. He is afraid of her becoming unsexed; he does not want her to be independent.

But man need not think that, in this seething, restless age of progress, woman will sit tamely by and watch him go out to make history. The spirit of unrest is in her heart also, and she cannot be happy unless she, too, is doing something to develop her life.

Many Girls Earn Their Living

Many girls who are not forced to it by stress of circumstances, earn their own livings. In a family where there are a number of daughters, there is not enough home work to keep them all active.

A girl of any spirit, quickly wearies of a strictly social career and longs for a real interest.

The business girl is a splendid specimen of modern girlhood. She is self-respecting, alert, intelligent and womanly.

She is that she is expert at stenography or housekeeping does not in the least detract from her womanliness. Her business education tends her to be methodical and teaches her the value of money. Having earned money, she does not squander it.

I think the day will come when every girl will receive a business education, even if she never puts it to use.

Save outside the normal that the business girl is not famous, that she knows nothing about cooking or housekeeping. But if you are in love with a business girl, don't let that worry you, for the girl who has been trained to habits of neatness, economy and methodical precision can quickly learn to cook and run a household.

The Business Girl Is Womanly.

And you need not fear that she is in the least unfeminine; for her heart is just as much in the right place as though she had never left the home nest.

And the fact that she knows as much about business as you do won't keep her from thinking you the most wonderful product of the age.

You cannot dull the clarity of her vision in anything pertaining to business, but Cupid, the mischievous boy, can pull the wool over her eyes with the greatest ease.

Of course, there are silly, empty-headed girls in business, just as in any other walk of life, but I am talking about the typical business girl—the girl who is making a career for herself.

She may be an artist, a typewriter, or a shop girl, but she is none the less a business girl if she is paying strict attention to her work and trying to better herself.

The business girl has come to stay, to vote, if possible, and to be a recognized factor in the world's work.

She Has No Easy Road

It is not all an easy road for her, for sometimes men make her feel very keenly that she is an interloper and that if she will earn her own living she must expect you to treat her as they treat each other. But dignity and patience usually win the day, and the very men who oppose her most bitterly oftimes become her warmest partisans.

She makes a good wife, a fact which a good many happy husbands can bear me out in.

The hand that taps a typewriter can also make a pie or smooth a boy's head, don't forget that, young man in search of a wife.

Puzzle---Find the Loafer---By Nell Brinkley

"The Boy smiled big with eager eye, and Lady, with the lazy body and lazy mind, said, in the gentle vernacular of the city: 'Get away, you loafer!'"

THE HEAD OF THE HOUSE

BY DOROTHY DIX

A YOUNG man, who says he is in love with a girl who is his social inferior, writes to this department, asking if the husband is not the head of the house, and if he does not fix the social status of the family.

Theoretically, yes. Practically, no.

Of course, in countries where there are hereditary titles the wife's place in society depends absolutely upon her husband's rank. The instant a nobleman marries a duke she becomes a duchess and entitled to walk out of a room before a countess, although the countess may have the blood of all the Howards in her veins and be cultured and accomplished, while the duchess is an ignorant plebeian.

If an American husband is very great, or distinguished, to a certain degree he endows the social position of his achievements upon his wife. Officially, the wives of public men and very rich men have a certain position, though the wives of millionaires enjoy a time pine in vain to pass under the awnings of the wives of their husband's business associates.

Wife Is Head of Family

Among ordinary people in this country, however, it is indisputably true that practically the wife is the head of the family, and fixes the social status, and that when a man marries he goes up or down the social ladder according to the kind of lady he espouses.

Of course, men will deny this. They like to think that they can marry whom they please and lift their wives to their heights, but they give their wives their passes, but they cannot do it. If you will go back to a community from which you have been absent for ten years and ask, "Where is that nice young Jim Squibb I used to know? Used to be such a favorite in society and was such a fine representative of a fine old family?" "Huh," somebody will answer, "he's dropped out of sight. Married a pretty common girl and went down to her people, you know. You never hear of him in society any more than if he were dead."

Woman's O. K. Accepted

But you hear on every lip the name of Benjamin, who is president of the bank, and is an alderman, and prominent in the church and philanthropy, and whose dinner parties are a social struggle for. Is it? He married pretty, you say. The need to go to ordinary high school. I thought." Oh, it's the answer, "but he married the nicest and most charming woman, who was a cousin of Mrs. Astor."

The man who doesn't like to have a part of a woman and a clear out his grade of society is less the master of his wife. He and those people know his wife's social position and want to be with her. They don't ask his wife to their dinners and dinners and dinner. It is the wife who receives on the pavement and who is invited to the wedding and to look after the trousseau.

Bless her heart! she's a good deal older brother after all.

Mrs. George Gould began life as a poor girl and made herself a social queen, and has never forgotten it.

It is not made her in her own mind any less her husband's equal. Her husband's name is Vanderbilt, and he is the head of the New England community from which she sprang. It is upon these the rest of the world looks. If they want to be with them they must be with her. If they don't want to be with them they must ask his wife to their houses and dinners and dinner. It is old friends will come to see his bride once, and then, if she can't give the sign and countersign that entitles her to be a member of their circle, they will murmur, "Poor old Bob," and strike his name off of their invitation lists.

On the other hand if a man is at all tolerable his wife has no difficulty at all in throwing open the gates of the society to which she belongs to him. Her friends not only accept him. They embrace him with joy because, for one thing, a woman's O. K. goes in society, and, for another, society, which is shy on men, is less critical of men than it is of women.

In Contemplating Marriage

In contemplating marriage, therefore, a man had as well face the fact at the outset that his position in society will depend upon his wife. If he marries an uneducated, loud and vulgar sort of a woman he may count upon having to associate with her kind of people all the balance of his life. She may be as pretty as a picture, and as good as gold, but her virtues will not atone for her social shortcomings in the eyes of society, and before he knows it he will find that the places that knew him at dinner tables and parties know him no more.

And if he marries a social grade above him he will just as surely find himself among the social outcasts. For it is the wife who settles the family position. It is the wife who entertains the husband with her family, her friends. It is the wife who makes the atmosphere of the home. It is the wife who plans the entertainments, who issues the invitations, who arranges a man's family a certain [illegible] of people.

When a man marries into a neighborhood of people, the only interest that the general public has in the man is who he is able to pay his bills or not. Everybody is on the qui vive for what sort of a wife. Is she smart looking? Is she well dressed? Has she the manner, in fact of one used to good society. And then the neighborhood goes to call, and it depends on the impression that the new woman made whether she is invited to join the sacred neighborhood institutions, and whether your little debutante and my little Mamie are ever seen with their best doll and red wagon to play with her children or not.

As to whether her husband is aristocratic or not as to what clubs in the city he may belong to, we don't bother to inquire.

The family position has been settled by the wife, and the incident is closed.

CHAPTER XX. (Continued).

WHEN he re-entered the room he pulled open the drawer of the little table and saw that his revolver was there.

"Richard, is there no chance for me?" begged the woman. "You will not know from what he says, and yet you will think that you know."

"I shall be able to tell what is the truth."

He lifted his arm above his head in a despairing gesture.

"Merciful Father!" he groaned, and then he felt for the pistol as if the thought had entered his mind that he might there and then end the horrible drama.

Both heard the door below open and close softly, and footsteps upon the stairs.

Ward stepped back, out of the line of vision, between the door and the bed.

Thorne entered, dressed in evening dress, immaculate of garb, handsome, cool, and on his face a smile of triumph. He turned to a divan near, placed his silk hat and cane upon it, and proceeded to draw off his gloves.

"Well?" he inquired, as he glanced at Frances crouched near the head of the bed, and pulling the bed curtains about her. "Well, my dear runaway?"

In the next second he saw Ward.

"So you are here, eh? Then she lied to me," Thorne sneered.

"You are not alone in that. She lied to me also," the husband said coldly.

"It was grounds for divorce you wanted, I suppose," Thorne suggested. "Well, you've got 'em."

"I Wanted to Return This"

"I wanted to return you this," said Ward, taking the money from the drawer, where it lay beside the pistol.

He flung the bills at the feet of Thorne.

"Huh!" half yawned the man as he stooped, picked up the money and tucked it in his pocket. "Is that all?"

"What did you get for that money?" demanded Ward, "for men of your stamp do not give so much for nothing."

"I wish others had that confidence in my business ability," replied Thorne, dryly. "I received nothing."

"You would say that anyway," replied Ward.

"Undoubtedly," assented Thorne. "Only as it happens this time facts save me the trouble of lying."

"You received nothing?"

"Nothing."

"Then you gave me the money because"

"Because your confidence in my financial capabilities is not borne out by facts. She attracted me; she is pretty, and it was an interesting experiment—I've paid more than that for such experiences—she puzzled me; I wanted to find out what she really was."

"And you found out?"

"What I have told you: that is all."

"I don't know whether you have enough decency to appeal to," said Ward, "but put yourself in my place if you can. You'd have to know the truth, wouldn't you? Tell me."

"That's the Truth," Said Thorne

"I know what you mean," replied Thorne. "I may be pretty much of a skunk, but I can still understand some things. The truth is what I have told you. I got nothing for my money; not even a promise. That's the truth, the whole truth, so help me God."

"An oath means nothing to you," Ward said coldly, leaning on the little table.

"You say you wanted to find out what sort of a woman she was. What did you find out?"

"Well, most men choose between two kinds of women," drawled Thorne, picking up his hat, gloves and cane, "One class he takes a wife, and out of the other——"

"By God!" half screamed Dick, pulling the pistol from the drawer and firing at Thorne.

His aim was wild.

The house still rang with the reverberations of the shot, and a mist of white smoke floated in the centre of the room.

Thorne was unhurt.

"Although you seem to kill," came from Thorne, in a low but steady voice, "understand that what I have told you was nothing but the truth."

Frances Had Fainted

Frances had fainted among the curtains of the bed.

"If I killed you, it would be but waste on my part," Ward said. "Nothing but waste, waste, waste."

He flung the pistol on the floor and strode from the room and the house, leaving Thorne and his wife for a moment together.

Thorne did not even bother to look at the body of the woman tumbled up in a little heap of lace nightwear. He put on his hat and departed on the heels of Ward, congratulating himself on being alive.

CHAPTER XXI.

A T 2 o'clock in the morning a woman came down the steps of the Ward mansion on Riverside Drive.

What had been a Summer shower, with a thunder storm two hours before, had settled into a heavy downpour of rain. Although the wind was not high, it came in short, strong gusts, every now and then a cataract of unusual force, making the young trees on the drive bend low.

The woman shielded herself as best she could with a silk umbrella. She wore no rubber shoes, and walked as if she had never worn such things or had ever felt inclement weather, save through the storm windows of a touring car.

The gutters were high with the water that poured down the steep grade under to distant Manhattan avenue. At the corner the street was a little bubbling flood, nearly a foot deep. The woman, as if walking aimlessly, stepped into the water and waded across. A puff of wind turned her umbrella inside out, wrenched it from her little hand, and away it went in a grotesque and seemingly drunken flight.

The rain beat upon the woman's head and body. As she passed through the glare of a street lamp, her face showed above a water-soaked black scarf. Its hue had been enameled and rouged, and the eyebrows darkened. The ruthless rain had battered down the pitiful little art of vanity. The rouge and charcoal and powder, wet, streaked the woman's cheeks, until she looked as if she had "made up" for some low comedy part on the stage.

She staggered on, past the Siegel equestrian statue, and finally past the Soldiers and Sailors' Monument. The houses of wealth and fashion were left behind or she approached the wharves and their fringe of lumber yards, ship chandlers' stores and small grog shops.

What policemen may have had posts in that part of town were snugly tucked away out of the way. The woman's pace settled to a steady, dragging gait. Her limbs, under the heavy, rain-soaked garments, seemed to move mechanically. Occasionally she lifted her hands and swept the water from her eyes and nostrils.

The storm-beaten traveler finally entered the dark gardens of Hell's Kitchen. The wet sidewalks brilliantly reflected the shafts of light from numerous saloon doors. She was in that dismal region, where a miserable group of remorseful and humanity is given the few hours before dawn for its sordid revels.

The woman sank on the pavement at the side entrance to one of the saloons just as two gaudily-dressed, shrill-voiced women made their exit.

"Hully, what's this?" asked one of them, leaning over and pulling at a shoulder of the fallen one.

"Soused!" called the other.

"Don't look so."

"Maybe the poor devil's hungry."

"Quick!"

"What'll we do?"

"Send for a cop!"

"Nay, give her a chance."

The Forest Fairy

By ROBERT JOYCE

WHERE the gold moss hangs on the mighty oak,
Where never was heard the woodman's stroke.
In the ancient woods
Where the wild deer bide—
Where the heron breeds
By the lakelet's side.
Morn, noon and eve, in the rosy air,
We dance and sport full merrily there.
At night in a glade of the brightest green
We meet with glad homage our youthful queen.
There in revel and feast
We spend the night,
Or in balmy rest
Till the morning light;
Or out on the greensward, smooth and fair,
We dance and sport so merrily there.
'Tis glorious to see the globes of dew
By the red beams of morn pierced through and through;
'Tis sweet to peep
Where the wild flower gleams,
And sweeter to hear
The birds and the streams;
And sweeter than all in the blue, bright air
To dance and sport so merrily there.

Unusual interest is being manifested by the sport-loving element of society in the seventh annual horse show to be held Memorial Day on the grounds of the Chestnut Hill Club. A Happy Life

By HENRY WOTTON

HOW happy is he born and taught
That serveth not another's will.
Whose armor is his simple thought,
And simple truth his utmost skill!
Whose passions not his masters are;
Whose soul is still prepared for death,
Untied unto the world by care
Of public fame or private breath;
Who envies none that chance doth raise,
Nor vice; who never understood
How deepest wounds are given by praise;
Nor rules of state, but rules of good;
Who hath his life from rumors freed;
Whose conscience is his strong retreat;
Whose state can neither flatterers feed
Nor ruin make oppressors great;
Who God doth late and early pray
More of His grace than gifts to lend,
And entertains the harmless day
With a well-chosen book or friend;
This man is freed from servile bands
Of hope to rise or fear to fall;
Lord of himself, though not of lands,
And having nothing yet hath all.

In many of the items described below we could name a value far in excess of price and still be truthful. But the same suspicion would be cast upon it that all comparative price advertising receives as a result of widespread abuse. We prefer the temporary indifference of the sensation seeker to the suspicion of one well poised reader seeking a real money saving opportunity.

Announcement was made today of the purchase by Alfred A. Shuman of the property at 1 Allston street, a triangular lot of 6,000 square feet, with a frontage of 100 feet on Allston street, from the Little Nassau Land Company. Mills and Gay Company will be the purchasers a year ago of the Frost & Adams property, which runs from Allston street to Stanhope, and they have outlined a vast scheme of improvement. Little Nassau street, which is now an alley, runs through the property, and it is understood that the purchasers will make it a thoroughfare connecting Allston street with Stanhope, and will also be used for improvements and business.

THE MYSTERIOUS CAMORRA—

Terrible dolums of the strongest band of miscreants in the world will be told in detail in the Sunday American.

SAYS SOLDIERS DIE AT HOMES' GATES

WASHINGTON, May 13.—In an attack in the House upon the management of the national military homes, Representative Cox of Ohio submitted reports of coroners' inquests in proof of the charge that soldiers had died just outside the gates because the governors were not privileged to admit them. He charged the board of managers with wastefulness and extravagant use of public funds and with irregular use of mowers in what is known as the pest fund. He moved to amend and adopt President Roosevelt's recommendation that the homes be turned over to the War Department.

BRIDE SEEKS FATHER SHE NEVER SAW

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 13.—Mrs. Jennie Newton Mehlejohn, eighteen, of Pitts field, Mass., a bride of a few months, is in Syracuse searching for her father and seeking to solve the mystery of her birth.

After the death of her mother, thirteen years ago, the daughter was placed in an orphan asylum at Albany, and later was adopted by Mrs. John G. Schwab of Pittsfield, from whose home she was married last November. The young woman says she grew up without learning the name of her parents. She was given to understand that Syracuse was her birthplace.

WILL FIGHT CLARK FOR SPEAKERSHIP

WASHINGTON, May 13.—That Champ Clark of Missouri may not be elected Speaker of the House in the event that the Democrats have a majority when the Sixty-second Congress is organized, is the burden of a statement cried on the floor, for all practical purposes, the statement was issued anonymously, since it was given out by a Democratic member who expressed a desire that his name should not be disclosed.

STEALS TROUSERS IN SLEEPING CAR

GALESBURG, Ill., May 13.—"Porter! Oh, Porter! what happened to my——"

"Porter, where are my trousers?"

And so in a despairing chorus from passengers on a Burlington train which it drew into Galesburg.

It speedily developed that a thief, probably at Beardstown, had entered the train, and not having time to investigate all pockets, walked off with various nether garments to explore them at his leisure.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Today is Friday the thirteenth. Where are the bears?

$ $ $

Predestined means are being employed to rout the market's stability. The result seems to satisfy the conspirators, who, by their late operations, confess that old tricks of professionalism cannot depress prices.

$ $ $

As State Street is in as optimistic mood it has to be a pretty bad accident that cannot be construed as favorable to the market.

$ $ $

The inspection party that has been looking over the Hill system with the idea of bringing out a bond issue has returned from the Northwest. George F. Baker, who was of the party, is very optimistic in regard to the outlook for the Northwest. It was understood that many of his associates bought stocks simply on the strength of his outspoken optimism. The deal whereby Great Northern proposes to get absolute ownership of the Burlington makes a bond market necessary in the Hill shares and furnishes another reason for believing that any reaction is purely technical.

$ $ $

Steel is being accumulated by brokers that usually operate for inside interests. The International Harvester Company is expected to make its contracts for material soon, and this may redeem the boom in steel. Besides, all of the money that the railroads have just borrowed in Europe is going to be expended for rails and rolling stock. There's some foundation for State Street's cheerful feeling.

$ $ $

Probably the boom is on in earnest, but it is to be remembered that advances in prices do not proceed upward without frequent reactions. Enthusiasm is not advisable in any market. It leads to bad judgment, reckless use of brakers and usually leads to losses. The majority of people never to buy at the top and then spend their after moments in vain regrets, unless it should happen that the market is in unusually strong one.

$ $ $

Much disappointment was expressed because the railroads that have borrowed money abroad failed to make announcement of the terms. The Street, of course, jumps to the conclusion that this is on account of the price paid for the money, but that conclusion is absurd, since enough financiers know the price to discount any market effect. It is possible that some details have not been concluded. Miles of red tape surround every financial operation in Europe.

$ $ $

It develops that one Prason Granby stock broke so badly some weeks ago was that the company has run out of iron ore and was compelled to purchase it at a cost that wipes out practically all the profit there is in Granby properties. Another surprising development in connection with Granby is that most of the insiders still hold their stock. The selling that broke the price was from outsiders not associated with a Spokane copper operator.

$ $ $

Transfer of Nevada Consolidated from the curb to the New York Stock Exchange is another step toward retirement from the speculative world of the stocks of the deep copper mines in the Butte camp. Nothing but figures in their own official reports are correct.

$ $ $

State street is soon to have the stock of an Automobile Trust, which is to speculate. The General Motors Company, which has capital of $100,000,000, earned $12,000,000 net last year. Bankers are heading on a new scheme of capitalization, something in keeping with the ideas of the company of her eldest child, $150,000,000 will be about right. The company now turning out 30 cars a day is far behind its orders. One plant is a quarter of a mile wide and seven-eighths of a mile long.

$ $ $

Recent railroad financing abroad and curtailment in iron and other raw materials have placed the financial situation in better balance. Additional wage increases are in process of adjustment to consumers. Freight rate advances will lift most of the burden from carriers. Consumers' backs can bear it, as probably they can.

$ $ $

Thompson, Towle & Co. say: "We get it from good copper authority that only one-eighth of a cent in the price separates buyers and sellers of 100,000,000 pounds of copper."

$ $ $

With the percentage of reserves standing at 54.40 per cent, the Bank of England made the strongest return this week for at least the past ten years. It is very clear that, with such a strong showing, the governors would have reduced the minimum rate of discount if it were not for the fact that the Government financing is still in progress. The bank will take care of the Government needs during the remainder of the budget. Until this is out of the way, it is impossible to say any change will be made in the rate. The burden from carrying Americans' backs can bear it, as probably they can.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN BOSTON, MAY 13, 1910

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, MAY 13, 1910

Mr. Hibbard Has the Sympathy of the Community

Former Mayor George A. Hibbard has the sympathy of the entire community in his deplorable physical plight.

For Mrs. Hibbard, who has done much in a woman's way to assist the charities and to help along the general betterment of Boston, there will be universal regret that this affliction has fallen upon her family.

Mr. Hibbard has been a man of strong likes and dislikes. He has had staunch friends and bitter enemies. But in this hour of his physical misfortune the citizens of Boston, appreciating his public spirit and his public service, and admiring the gallant fight he has made against disease, must wish for him a speedy restoration to good health and to prosperity.

Whatever else George A. Hibbard may have been he has always been an honest man. It may be that at one period of his career he was too much of a stalwart partisan to please political opponents, and that, at another time, he was too much of a non-partisan to suit some of his friends; it may be that, as Mayor, he held the reins of economy too strongly to suit politicians who would build up a great local party through public spoils, but, all that aside, it is generally recognized that, in the conduct of public office, he was faithful and efficient.

As postmaster of the Boston district he instituted many reforms and improvements that greatly benefited the community. As Mayor of the city of Boston, he instituted many reforms that will be lasting and beneficial, and vigilantly safeguarded the city treasury. The only charge ever brought against his administration was that, if anything, it was too economical.

Broken in health, the feelings of all men must be merged into pity and kindliness for Mr. Hibbard. It is to be regretted that an arbitrary State commission, having to do with the certification of his appointment as city collector, did not have the common decency to suggest its objection to him in order that his name might have been withdrawn.

On no other grounds than that of ill-health could the Civil Service Commission honestly have been opposed to him as city collector. In a pre-eminent degree he possessed just the essentials and qualifications which would have made for a successful administration of the duties of that office.

The greatest praise that can be given to any man is to say that he occupied public offices which provided splendid opportunities for augmenting his salary and that he left them poorer than when he went into them.

This is true of Mr. Hibbard, and it is the best proof of his sterling honesty.

It is to be hoped that those friends of his for whom he has done so much will not forget that a friend in need is a friend indeed.

Harvard and the Comet

A Little Extension Course That Is Not in the Catalogue

An extension course that is not listed in the Harvard catalogue has been offered to the public by the university in Cambridge for the past four months and is still being offered, free.

The course was drawn into being by Halley's comet. The Harvard observatory is the teaching centre. Professors Pickering, Wendell and Campbell are the instructors. The newspapers are the textbooks. The New England reading public are the grateful pupils.

There were persons who feared that the comet might put an end to all life on this planet of ours. There were others who believed that the comet was an omen of impending disaster. Thousands of others still were puzzled or interested.

To all these the Harvard observatory has given light. Through interviews, statements and daily bulletins the professors have given to the people the true story of the comet—what it really is, why it is no menace and where to see it. The story, even without the element of danger, has been fascinating and instructive.

Mainly through their efforts and their kindness New Englanders are now watching for Halley's comet with new interest and new insight. The celestial visitor with the enormous tail, here only once in seventy-six years, has become an educator.

The recital of what the Harvard observatory has done needs no comment or praise at this time. It will be well, however, to remember these little things when politics again surge around the Cambridge institution: when politicians ask: "What does Harvard do for the Pee-pul?"

Extracting the Long Green From the Tall Ones

A Spruce Proposition for New England Boosters.

By MERTON E. BURKE.

WITHOUT paper it would be very difficult for the industrial world to exist. The "wheels of industry," of which we hear so much, would receive a mighty jolt were the paper supplies suddenly to stop.

Yet New England's importance in this vital industry, I think, is not generally appreciated.

New England, so long established as a mighty manufacturing country, sometimes forgets its own relative superior importance when it reads of the rapid development of the precocious infant West.

About the only time we read of paper making in New England is when some White Mountain tourist or Maine sportsman laments the rate at which the paper men are putting the kibosh on the spruce forests.

It might be well to mention, however, that if there is any other profitable use for New England spruce trees, it hasn't been discovered. The reforestation enthusiasts, no doubt, will solve the problem of the clearings.

Meanwhile the paper industry of New England is of considerable importance.

Our own little Bay State ranks second in the union in the production of paper—all grades of rag and wood-pulp paper considered—and is third in point of capital invested. The Commonwealth's own offspring—Maine—is third in production and second in capital. New York excels.

New England has some $100,000,000 invested in the industry.

Twenty-five thousand people are employed in producing the 100,000 tons of paper yearly manufactured these States.

The cost of raw material used yearly in New England, according to the last census is about $42,000,000, and the value of the finished product about $63,000,000.

Maine leads in the manufacture of newspaper—the spruce product—and is second in the manufacture of book paper. Massachusetts is first in the production of the finer linen and rag papers.

Holyoke has a world-wide reputation as the "Paper City," while the Dalton mills are famous for the production of the secret-process Government bank note paper.

To see the finest product of the Dalton mills you only have to look in your pocket—unless you are married. No offence, ladies, compliment intended.

If old Hercules had the 75,000 tons, more or less, of pulp paper turned out yearly from the New England mills, he wouldn't have to carry the world on his shoulders, accepted on everybody's view, but could wrap it up nicely and tuck the bundle under his arm. And if any New Shadowcar of finance should accumulate all of the product of the Dalton mills after Uncle Sam has affixed his mark, Rockefeller foundations would sink into the relative insignificance of thirty cents.

When we read a lot about surpassing Western and Asiatic development it is sometimes well to look over our home industries, give them their proper appreciation—and keep up our end of the campaign of promotion.

Why not join the "Boosters?" They are becoming numerous.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

A LESSON IN OPTIMISM

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I would like to ask and have answered through the columns of your valuable paper this question: In discussing the subject of prosperity recently pertaining to things in general at a gathering composed chiefly of people born in this glorious country, it was stated by one of the number present that America was a prosperous country, and the outlook was that it would always be such notwithstanding the conflicts caused by the recent strikes, coal famine, milk war and other like matters in which the country is involved, a country where the low liest among us has a chance. Most certainly we must be in a much worse condition. We are not visited with famine or pestilence. We are at peace with other nations. And if in our streets there are children who are starving and not properly clothed is it the fault of the nation? If America is not a prosperous country, where may we look for prosperity on the face of the globe? The poor you always have with you. We surely should take an optimistic view of the situation. And who should stand for the prosperity of the nation if not its citizens? And not are we down.

THINKS RE'S SOLVED IT

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Only as a layman, but with some interest in astronomy, I read Professor Serviss's article in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN (May 8) which gives rise to some perplexing questions. It is agreed the tail of the comet always projects in a direct line opposite to the sun. It should be borne in mind that the luminous tail is thus always seen exactly in that field of space which would be the shadow of the comet. Since, when the comet is approaching the sun the tail is following behind, and when moving from the sun it is pushing its tail ahead.

Now let us assume the comet is of solid matter, gases, etc.—as claimed—and if the tail is composed of even in part solid particles, dust or gases, by what possible force can the tail be thrown forward in advance of the comet in any part of its orbit? Again, if the comet is solid and opaque, how can the tail be illuminated by the sun when always in the shadow of the comet?

For another theory let us assume that the comet—whether of solid substances or in a gaseous state—is not opaque but transparent. To illustrate by experiment I made a small ball of pieces of broken glass very loosely cemented together. This ball I suspended in the centre of the room in the direct rays of the sun, placed a black screen near the ball and in line with the sun's rays. I then stepped into a darkened room a few feet away and found that I had produced a miniature comet with an illuminated tail against the black screen, the tail being produced by the rays of the light passing through the various shaped pieces of glass. This experiment conveyed the idea to me that the comet is transparent and that it's tail is merely the rays of the sun passing through the comet cast upon its shadow.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE VS. DEATH

THIRD TIME

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

In a recent issue a correspondent inquired what was the difference from a Christian science standpoint between the old-time form of witchcraft and the so-called mental, vicious animal magnetism and the "death thought." As many of your readers may desire information on this point as well as inquirer, I am glad to submit the following:

The belief in the power of witchcraft; the belief in the power of malicious animal magnetism or the "death thought" is one and the same belief, and it has its basis solely in the conception of a power or force opposed to God. In this belief Christian Science has no part. Christian Scientists affirm in the words of Scripture that "the Lord our God is one Lord"; that He is the only Creator; that He and all His creation is good. We affirm that he is omnipotent and omnipresent. Taking as a basis, therefore, the one and only Creator whose creation is good, who is all-powerful and all-present, there is left neither space nor opportunity for the operation of evil, and this spiritual fact is now and forever operative in God's universe. Any other teaching is not Christian Science.

That evil is not power is an axiom that the whole world would be benefited by adopting, and it is a watchword in Christian Science.

Guide to the Professions

POET—It should be remembered that, as some one has said, poets are made, no one has said, poets are born. This does not mean that a poet is never born, but that being born is a mere preliminary to the more difficult task of becoming a poet. The simplest way to become a poet is to migrate to Indiana, while another—and more difficult—is to live even in New York, or Manhattan is to live even in New York, or Manhattan as it should be called in this form of verse, and write of the "verge of soul of verse, and write of the "verge of soul forces in the canyons." A canyon, by the forces in the canyons." A canyon, by the way, is a street. There are other ways way, is a street. There are other ways to become a poet, but they hardly count to become a poet, but they hardly count in view of modern fashions in verse.

CLOCKER—A clocker is a person who tells you that Fiches worked six furlongs in 1:09, breaking every record that was ever made, and that he will undoubtedly win the third race in a common canter. With this exclusive information you can, if you are hard-hearted enough to take money from a struggling bookmaker, amass a comfortable fortune. After Fieface has come in last in a race run in about 1:16, you seek the clocker, who shakes his head solemnly and murmurs, "Didn't run up to his work." Being consoled by this satisfactory explanation, you request the clocker to inform you when he picks up another good tip. From this explanation you can get what you must do to become a clocker.

MILLIONAIRE—Nothing is simpler than to become a millionaire. Just go and make a million.
